Charge Will Be Thoroughly Investigated, Declares Chairman of Commission—Injured

Brought to Atlanta

Charges by two passengers that the wreck yesterday on the Western and Atlantic railroad (the state road which is leased by the N., C. and St. L. railroad) was caused by rotten crossties will probably result in an inspection of the roadbed by the state railroad commission.

C. Murphree Candler, chairman of the railroad commission, when informed of the charges last night, said: "If the charges are made by responsible parties it will be the duty of the commission to send its inspector to make an examination of the roadbed. In fact, if I had heard of the charges earlier in the day I probably would have sent the inspector at once. Railroads are required to make detailed reports to the commission of every wreck and when-

The passengers who make the charges of rotten cross-ties are J. R. Kemp, an Atlanta traveling man who lives at 166 Ogleshorpe avenue, in West End, and T. C. White, of Chicago.

Mr. Kemp in telling a reporter of The Journal about the wreck last night

ROTTEN TIES, CHARGE.
 "I went up and down the track in both directions from the wreck and found cross-ties so rotten that I could crumble them in my hand. I am satisfied the wreck was caused by these cross-ties. And after the wreck, they kept us there for hours in the rain and finally hauled us into Atlanta in an old dilapidated coach which had no lights. The wreck occurred at 11:45 o'clock Saturday morning and it was 7:45 o'clock Saturday night before we got to Atlanta. The wreck was just forty-two miles from Atlanta. At that distance I should say the railroad ought to have had a train there at least in an hour and a half to bring the passengers into the city, and it ought to have made the trip back to the city as fast as it made the trip to the wreck.

which would have put us here in three hours. One man on the train was going to his mother in south Georgia in response to a telegram saying she was dying. He had to make a connection in Atlanta at 7 o'clock. I felt sorry for that man as he paced up and down the track, waiting for the train to come from Atlanta."

Mr. White, the Chicago man, brought with him to Atlanta a piece of a rotten

G. T. Rogers, a cotton broker, of Kingston, does not agree with the other passengers that defective rails or ties caused the wreck, and he bases his theory upon his own investigation and the first conspicuous statements

ROGERS, STATEMENT

Said Mr. Rogers on his arrival in Atlanta: "I was standing near Manning, when he first regained consciousness and his words to another engineer present were to the effect that just before the engine left the track he shouted to his fireman that something had gone wrong with the engine.

"The train was going up grade, not an excessive rate of speed, and was making the curve on the inside. At that point the north bound train, taking the curve on the outside, go much faster than we were traveling and it stands to reason that he'd the road been the cause, the accident would have happened to a north bound, not a south bound train.

"While it was apparent that many of the cross ties had been in the ground

"However, the outside rail on the curve, where the wreck occurred, had been worn considerably and was much thinner than an ordinary rail." Accounts of passengers differ as to the speed of the train when the crash came. Some say it was traveling at a very fast rate and others say it was running but ordinarily fast.

CHARGES NEGLIGENCE.
 J. H. Newbury, of Warsaw, N. C., a real estate man, was another passenger of the train, who scored the railroad company.
 "It's criminal negligence," he declared, "to allow trains to run over such a road. I took twenty men and showed them where the rails had been worn until they were dangerously thin, and we found many rotten cross ties.

"I have been traveling many years, but have never seen such a road bed."
Major J. McCollum, superintendent, did not return from the scene of the wreck on the first relief train, and no answer to the charges of the passengers could be obtained from him. Other officials of the road refused to discuss the wreck.

The wreck occurred on an embankment about 60 feet high and, accord-freedom, bought by a song, has still the singer's voice; pardon, purchased at the price of money, has still the voice of reformation; conversation, a Caruso has been completely cured by the very reward it captured.

Other words, Thomas Wadsworth, P. P. V., has quit.

He was judged for singing, he was sent for singing, and now he will sing more, he says, save for one person in the world—Judge George E. Johnson, who got him out of jail.

The story of Mr. Wharton's incarceration and subsequent release is symmetrical in two-part time, the first part being the time Mr. Wharton was in the prison, the second, the time he was out.

He was sentenced by Judge Johnson, December 1, to serve 21 days. But he later learned that the judge had changed his mind Thursday morning, and he was released.

Another case occurred the next day, and the judge was not given the chance of changing the rock.

It is reported that the judge, with Mayor Woodard and other influential citizens, was in the city at the time of the release.

Man Carries Small Cannon Loaded With Dum-Dum Bullets

The first dum-dum bullets have found their way to Atlanta. They were brought here by Judge DeLoe, a six-foot, six-inch man, who says he comes from the Adirondacks, and who was arrested Saturday night carrying a young captain in his hip-pocket.

DeLoe made it the arrest, charging DeLoe with drunk and disorderly conduct. The revolver found on his person contained several flat-headed bullets, which the police declare are new.

DeLoe said he got them from a man in the Adirondacks.

DESTRUCTOR CO. WOULD SHUT DOWN CREMATORY

Plans to File Formal Notice With United States Court

Attorneys Evans & Spence, who represent the Destructor company, appeared in the United States district court Saturday with a motion to file a supplemental bill in the crematory case and also with a formal notification that it plans to shut down the crematory.

Another case occurred the next day, and the notice was not given the chance of changing the rock.

Negro Driver Slugged And Robbed by Two Youthful Highwaymen

Hold up and slugged by a pair of bandits, Ben Long, a negro driver for the Echols grocery store at 4 Cleburne avenue, jumped from his delivery wagon, when freed by the thieves, and ran for the nearest house, leaving his horse to wander aimlessly about a search for the wagon, but was finally persuaded to go back to the store.

Long declared that two negro boys, one armed with a "billy," and the other with a revolver, jumped into his wagon and slugged him and then rifled his pockets of $20. The negro bears a bad skin on his forehead and his story is fully credited by his employer.

RAPID-FIRE PROGRAM AT TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL

A rapid fire program has been arranged for the coming exercises of the Young Men's Hebrew club at Trinity Sunday school this morning.

Six prominent talks will be made by prominent members of the Sunday school and one of the features of the program will be the music furnished by a male quartet composed of Messrs. Hubbard, Davis, Sutton, and Bradford.

This class is under the leadership of Mrs. Hartwell Spain. The former members are expected to attend and all young men of the city interested in Sunday school work are invited to be present at 9:30.

The church is located at the corner of Washington street and Trinity avenue.

PLANTERS CAN TURN CALAMITY INTO BENEFIT, FARM EXPERTS SAY

Commissioners of Agriculture of South Join in Declaration That People of Section Can Insure Prosperity

J. D. Price, Georgia's commissioner of agriculture, elected president of the commissioners of agriculture of the southern states at their convention in Atlanta Friday, made public Saturday an important statement of the commissioners to the people of the south.

In this statement, the commissioners agree that the farmers and business men of the south, can, if they will, turn the calamity caused by the cotton situation, into lasting benefit.

The south in the past has not prospered as other agricultural sections have, state the commissioners, because all of the states, with the exception of North Carolina and Tennessee, have imported yearly food stuffs for man and beast equal in value to the cotton produced in these states. The calamity which has fallen on cotton will change this now if the southern farmers diversify their crops, state the commissioners.

Before leaving Atlanta Saturday morning, each of the commissioners urged Commissioner Price to obtain for his department a "market man," whose business will be to find markets for the products of every farmer in Georgia.

Who will write to the department for aid in selling his crop. Every southern state, except Georgia, said the commissioners, now has such a man, whose work has proven immensely valuable.

Commissioner Price has taken the matter under serious consideration, and says he will act as best he can under Georgia laws in regard to securing a "market man."

DIVERSIFY CROPS.
The statement of the commissioners follows in full:

A few months ago the farmers of the South were facing what seemed to be a prosperous period, but with the outbreak of the European war, which brought disaster to the cotton market, the principal crop of the south has been changed from what appeared prosperous conditions to a condition of calamity, so far as the present crop is concerned. But if the farmers and business men of the south will, they can much to turn this condition of calamity into a lasting benefit for the southern farmer and business interests.

Those in charge of the agricultural work have been urging the establishment of a diversification of crops and to no longer rely upon the one crop system, but the policy has been so firmly established by those extending credit that it is hard for the farmer to get away from the system.

"The south has been buying its food products largely from other sections of the country, sending money away from the south that should be kept in the south. If the business men of the south will lend their active cooperation to the farmers in assisting them in providing means of marketing the crops, the market and cash markets for same, as they have been accustomed to with the cotton crops, and the farmers will diversify their crops this calamity can be changed into a permanent benefit.

"In the sale of cotton, the Southern farmer has had no competitor, and no matter what the condition of the market, he has been able to sell his crop at a profit. This will not be the case when he enters with grain and other food crops, and he must learn to put these products in a condition similar to that from other sections. The grain must be graded and come up to the requirements of the law regulating the sale of grain products. The farmer of the south will suffer, unnecessarily, very severe loss in selling. He cannot expect to receive the price at which grain is sold at retail when he offers it in wholesale quantities, but will only obtain the price which the market justifies.

"All the cotton states, with the exception of North Carolina and Tennessee, from the best statistics we obtain import each year food stuffs for man and beast to an amount equal to the money received from the sale of cotton produced in these states, and this is the reason why the south has not prospered as has most of the other agricultural states.

PROSPECTIVE MARKET.
In addition to the home market, we have for diversified farming products, we have a prospective market in the war-torn nations across the water, which will for some time at least look to the United States for food, not only for its armies, but for its people at home, securing the farmers of the south who can produce food products at an earlier date, to supply this demand than any other section of the world's market. In changing from the one crop system to diversification, the farmer should give attention to live stock, to the extent that his means and opportunities will permit.

"It is the business of the farmer to see to the production of these crops, but in marketing the same he needs the cooperation of the business men and bankers of the country, and we earnestly request their assistance, and that the agricultural departments of each state give special attention to this point. We especially urge landlords to assist and encourage laborers in raising crops for their farms and families, and that the poorly leased system be extended so as to cover the time necessary for a rotation.

"This is the condition that confronts us. Have we the capacity to profit by the opportunity? If we have, the southern farmer will become as his ancestors were, one of the most independent type of mankind. Our forefathers fulfilled the duties of their generation and were prosperous. If the men of this day will be equal to the requirements as they were, we can look for the results which they received from their labors.

"The commissioners wish to assure our fellow-citizens that we will each to his utmost ability use the means under his control, in aiding in executing the ideas expressed in this address."

HIGH PRAISE IS GIVEN TO ATLANTA'S POSTOFFICE

Postmaster Jones Lauds His Assistants for Their Splendid Work

High praise is given the Atlanta postoffice in the report of the first assistant postmaster general, just issued. In fact, the Atlanta office is the only one in the report specifically mentioned.

In referring to the campaign for reorganizing and standardizing the service, the report goes on to say: "By thus reorganizing offices, the service is conducted in a more economical manner and efficient manner, as is well demonstrated in the case of the postoffice at Atlanta, Ga., one of the initial points in the campaign for reorganization and standardization. The receipts at Atlanta for the quarter ended June 30, 1914, showed an increase of 10 per cent over the corresponding period of last year, but the cost of the service at that office increased less than 2 per cent.

"Another important feature of this work has been the laying out of city carrier routes so that every carrier can be effectively utilized for full eight hours, and to the end that the maximum amount of mail is disposed of at each collection and delivery."

Postmaster Jones declares that credit for this condition is due the employees of the postoffice, who, he says, are the most competent in the service as well as the most industrious and faithful. Although, of course, the report does not state this, it is a fact that in point of efficiency the Atlanta office is ranked first in the country by the postal authorities at Washington.

ATLANTA BAR PICKS TWO YOUNG LAWYERS FOR VICE PRESIDENTS

LAWTON ALLEY.

LEE M. JORDAN.

When the Atlanta Bar Association, at its recent annual meeting and banquet, cast about for two vice presidents for the ensuing year, its choice fell unanimously upon two of the youngest, and at the same time, two of its ablest and most popular members—Lee M. Jordan and Lawton Alley. The fact that the choice in both instances was made unanimous is recognized by the legal profession as a mark of honor and both have been recipients of numerous congratulations.

Mr. Jordan, the first vice president, was headed toward the law as a profession when, at the age of fourteen, he was appointed page in the supreme court of the United States, a position he held five years. He graduated at Columbia University Law school in Washington in 1896 and took a post-graduate course and in 1896 obtained the degree of L.L.M. In 1899 he entered the law firm of Hoke Smith & H. C. Peoples and in 1904 became a member of the firm of Peoples & Jordan. In 1907 the firm of Tye, Peoples, Bryan & Jordan was formed and since Mr. Bryan retired from that firm in 1909 it has been Tye, Peoples & Jordan.

OLD SHOES ARE WANTED BY THE SALVATION ARMY

Brigadier General Crawford, of the Salvation army, whose office is at 302 Rock building, announced yesterday that the army would greatly appreciate contributions of old shoes, especially children's sizes. He explained that a good many destitute people, particularly the children, are suffering from insufficient footwear.

Mr. Alley, the second vice president, had academic training at the University of Georgia and University of Virginia, graduating from the law department of the latter in 1902. He began practice in Dalton, but came to Atlanta in 1906. He has figured in a number of important cases and has been particularly successful in several large damage suits.

MISERIES OF LIVING IN TRENCHES VIVIDLY DEPICTED BY SOLDIER

Hardships of Cold and Damp Dreaded More Than Actual Fighting, Says Britisher on Belgian Frontier

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Miseries of life in the trenches are vividly pictured in a story written by an English soldier on the Belgian frontier. He enlisted as a private but later was raised to an officer. Thus he has had an opportunity to see the war from different angles. His story follows:

It isn't the danger that affects one in the trenches, but the hardships of cold and damp. Bullets from snipers—the Germans have lots of these out nights and day—whizz about your ears continually, and occasionally shrapnel makes one tuck one's head down, but one gets so used to the firing that although it may sound incredible—it soon becomes far less noticeable than city traffic, for instance.

At night sometimes an outburst of artillery or a wild rattle of the musketry at an imaginary night attack wakes one stiff, sore, frozen and full of strong language from fitful dreams, which mainly concern themselves with steak puddings and huge fires at home. One is really horrible. One never ceases shivering. At night the soles of one's boots freeze and one is awakened by icy feet and forced to get up and stamp till the blood consents to circulate once more. Daylight brings some respite but the whole time one is forced to muffle to the eyes, and such things, comforters, cardigans and gloves, one cannot be too numerous. I can scarcely button my coat over my numerous raiment and still I perish.

MEAN LOOK LIKE MINERS.

Waiting and shivering are practically impossible. Officers and men leave the trenches like miners coming up from a pit but somehow that does not worry us. The idea of waiting in such cold is too awful, for it is impossible to restore the circulation by exercise in a narrow crowded trench and in the dugouts there is just room to lie down. They are now beginning to serve out coal and coke—just in time. There would have been wholesale frostbite otherwise.

The water in the machine gunne freezes and they have to be nursed back into action in front of fire. Rifles get frostbitten and sometimes are ruptured by the sudden shock consequent of being fired. This is rather welcome, however, for the wood from a defective rifle burns beautifully.

The water bottles freeze, too, and have to be thawed out. Water is a nuisance. It has to be fetched by night by fatigue parties from farms and villages in the rear, a process which takes sometimes two or three hours.

It is extraordinary how ingenious the men are in solving things for their comfort. They put little fireplaces in the side of a trench, line them with tin from ammunition boxes, and top them neatly with chimneys made of tinned-steel tin. They build elaborate rifle racks and make themselves snug niches to sleep in, roofing them with material from nearly ruined farm houses, piled over with earth.

The food is plentiful and good. The cooking need is for milk and fruit. Plenty of tobacco and cigarettes are to be had. There is a dearth of things to read, and it is considered rank treason to light a fire with a piece of newspaper. The trenches stretch in a practically unbroken line from the sea to the east frontier, not in groups of isolated rifle pits, but in what are really series of small towns linked together by narrow communicating trenches, each battalion occupying its own little town, which may be anything from half a mile to two miles long, and a hundred yards or so deep.

From behind the firing trenches there is a wild labyrinth of interesting communicating trenches, support trenches, dugouts for staff and officers, kitchens, and so forth, though of course some are more elaborate than others.

RELIEVING WORK TEDIOS.

It takes about an hour and a half to go from one end of our present battalion position to the other. Last week the trouble was mud, wet, viscous mud, four or five inches deep, that squelched round one's boots and got plastered over everything up to one's hat. My boots weaved tone. This week the frost has laid the mud and the cold is our enemy.

We spend a few days in the trenches and then a few days in reserve in the villages in the rear. The relieving, of course, has to be done at night. It is an eerie job. You march along as noiselessly as possible to within half a mile of the rear, where you are met by a guide and taken in single file through an interminable winding communication trench, full of roots and mud, never more than three feet wide at the top and about eighteen inches at the bottom. Then at a sort of prearranged signal the men of the company branch to their various posts and are signalled in until each man of the relieving force stands behind another of that to be relieved. The waiting is a dreadful business. It seldom takes less than three to five hours to effect the complete change. Everything is dead still except for an occasional bang-bang to show you the sentries are awake. No one pays the slightest attention to them.

The men exchange pleasantries in scarce whispers and the officers exchange news and explain the special points of the position. Finally, when the last man has been placed, the order to change places is passed down. The men step up onto the little firing platforms and the relieved men step down into the trench and file out silently into the night. Then all through the night half the men and officers are on guard, while half rest. By day there are only sentries here and there along the line.

A pathetic sight in the rear of all the trenches is the occasional plain wooden cross marking the grave of some victim of sniping or shrapnel bullet. Many are ornamented with a regimental badge and a simple inscription laboriously painted in pencil; others are quite plain.

I lagged my feet down yesterday and a curious primitive feeling of jitter hit me to shoot one. He had the audacity to stand up working in a trench only 250 yards away, so that I could see him from the waist up. I spent this morning hanging away at another working party, but could not see what result.

"REPAIR NOW" CAMPAIGN IS LAUNCHED IN ATLANTA

Chamber of Commerce Attacks Problem of Unemployed From Third Side

Attacking the problem of the unemployed from a third side, the Atlanta chamber of commerce Saturday afternoon launched a "repair now" campaign to supplement its campaign for the immediate erection of the contemplated new building and the right to have work on the southeastern fair buildings started early next year.

At a preliminary meeting Saturday afternoon, W. G. Cooper, secretary of the chamber, declared that a canvass shows that repairs, which if made would cause an expenditure of approximately $250,000, are needed by buildings in Atlanta, while Ed R. Hayes, city building inspector, estimates that fully 40 per cent of the buildings and dwellings in Atlanta are in need of repairs.

Leading spirits in the new campaign are S. R. Turman and Harrie C. White.
Mr. Turman has been appointed chairman of the "repair now" committee by President Mel H. Williamson of the chamber, and the other members of the committee are Harrie C. White, Thomas J. Day, W. A. Foster, Montefiore Solte and R. B. Oils.

Letters will be mailed property owners throughout the city, urging them to make any needed repairs in their buildings at the present time in order that labor can be given the unemployed.
Mr. Turman points out that there is a particular advantage in this campaign not common to the other campaigns to give labor to the unemployed. It is the fact that the outlay of the individual for repairs will not be so large as in the erection of a new building, and so it will be unnecessary to negotiate loans for the purpose.

Mr. Turman believes that two-thirds of the property owners to whom letters will be addressed will co-operate in the plan and this would mean an expenditure of about $150,000, although the outlay of the individual property owner would average only about $50.

Mr. Turman declares that in his opinion, the repair campaign will fill the gap between the present urgent need of employment and the opening of the regular building season.

MANY ATLANTIANS SAVE SPECIAL CHRISTMAS FUND

One Bank Mails Out $10,000 in Small Checks to Depositors

There are at least 1,000 Atlantians who have Christmas money this year.
The Third National bank has just sent out checks for $10,000 to 1,000 of Christmas savers, or an average of $10 per depositor. Assistant Cashier
J. Hanson has been busy all the week making out checks.

This money was deposited during the current year under a special Christmas savings plan and the individual depositor varied all the way from a few dollars to $50, and in some instances even $100.
These 1,000 Atlantians took Santa Claus by the forehead and got ready for him the money was saved for Christmas and will be spent in Atlanta during the holiday season.

ATLANTA GIRL WILL DANCE WAY TO FAME

MISS JANE ELLIOTT.

The first Atlanta girl to seek fame and fortune after the fashion of Mrs.
Vernon Castle leaves the city next Monday to study under New York masters of the dance preparatory to filling engagements as a professional dancer in leading cities of the country.

She is Miss Jane Elliott, daughter of Mr. Laura Elliott, of the Adriatic apartments, 215 Dawson street. Miss Elliott is beautiful and talented, and her exhibition of fancy dances at various summers and other private functions here have received the highest praise.

While several Atlanta girls have gone to New York to study the dance and have announced their intention of taking up professional dancing as a career, Miss Elliott is the only one who has announced a far as to make actual bookings. She has received an attractive offer to dance in Chicago, and already has signed a contract with a leading hotel in Jacksonville, Fla.

Miss Elliott is already an artist, but she wishes to perfect herself in the newest and most attractive steps. Consequently she is making a trip to New York and Chicago to round out her studies before she begins her actual work in January.

GEORGE C. WALTERS DIES FOLLOWING AN OPERATION

Was Prominent in Business and Social Circles for Years

Mr. George Calhoun Walters, a prominent business and society man of Atlanta, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at a private sanitarium as the result of an operation, performed Friday morning, for appendicitis.

Mr. Walters was fifty years of age and was a native of Richmond, Va., where his family is prominent, and where he lived until about twelve years ago, when he married Miss Mary Francis Winslow, of Atlanta, and moved to this city, making his home here ever since. Mrs. Walters is a sister of C.
R. Winslow and of Mrs. Ernest Woodruff.

Soon after moving to Atlanta Mr.
Walters went in partnership with Virgil E. Perryman in the surgical supply business, in which they were engaged jointly several years. Mr. Walters then sold out his interest with Mr. Perryman and established a trade marketing which he named "Cotton". This he sold, when it had become a success, and established another trade marketing.

LEAVES $150,000 TO HARVARD UNIVERSITY

(By Associated Press.)

employees, and John S. Billings is left $100,000 in trust for the purchase of books for the library.

zine, "Concrete Age," of which he was the owner and publisher at the time of his death.

Mr. Walters was a steward in the Inman Park Methodist church, was a member of the Capital City and the Piedmont Driving clubs, and was widely known and very popular.

He is survived by his wife, four brothers and three sisters. The brothers are J. Drew Walters, of Atlanta;
William L. Walters, of Richmond;
Charles T. Walters, of Richmond; Emmett Walters, of Richmond. The sisters are Mrs. James Martin, of Richmond; Mrs. R. C. Cunningham, of Norfolk; Mrs. Margaret A. Walters, of Richmond.

The funeral services will be held at the residence, 455 Edgewood avenue, at 11 o'clock Monday morning, and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

CITY ATTORNEY DEFENDS ATLANTA'S OFFICIALS

Graft Charges Made by Civic Forum Debater Are Refuted

In an address on the proposed bond issue before the Civic Forum Saturday night, City Attorney James L. Mayson took occasion to praise the city government of Atlanta and to vigorously refute charges made by one of the debaters that if a bond issue were voted, there would be graft by city officials.

In the general discussion which followed the debate, A. Chess, one of the Forum, made an emphatic assertion that bonds and graft would come together.
Mr. Mayson in his speech referred to this charge in strong terms, declaring that graft would be impossible, that Atlanta's government is one of the cleanest in the country and her officials among the best.

The negative side in the debate, represented by Howard C. Stevens and Basel Stockbridge, won the decision from the champions of the bond issue, Sam M.
Cassleton and W. H. Smith.

BUCHU FINE FOR DIABETES

We Eat Too Many Sweets, Which Clog Kidneys—Try Old Bibles' Recipe of Buchu and Juniper.

Candy, sugar and sweets, eaten to excess, have a bad effect on the kidneys and bladder, causing Diabetes, which is a well-known authority. The kidneys get clogged and sluggish and hurt. You experience: swelling, dribbling, straining on too frequent passage of urine, redhead and the back-of-the-head ache, stitches and pains in the back, bone pain, spots before the eyes, yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and depression.
Diabetes, Bright's Disease. The majority you have any of the above symptoms of Diabetes and weak kidneys get from too frequent draught of a 14oz. bottle of Sumner's Buchu and Juniper Compound. Take a tablespoonful after meals. Drink plenty of fresh water and abstain from eating too much sugar, sweets or highly seasoned foods. Your kidneys and bladder will then get the aid and natural. This is old bible recipe for weak kidneys and bladder. It strengthens these organs and cures Diabetes, and reduces all swellings. It flushes the kidneys and neutralizes the acid and sugar of Diabetes. (Adv.)

GERMAN TROOPS ARE PELTED BY SHOWER OF DEADLY ARROWS

Aviators of the Allies Fly Over Battlefields and Release Hail of Steel Darts on Their Foes Below

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Dec. 19.—The arrows, which aviators of the allies are using over the battlefields are in two parts, a head and a short-barbed shaft. The head measures about 2 1/4 inches, and the total length of the arrow is 4 1/2 inches. Both the head and shaft are of steel, the flange being formed of two flat plates of metal set at right angles, the pieces of the four flanges thus produced being set into the steel head. The diameter of the head is about 5/16 of an inch tapering to a fine point and the whole weighing about twenty-one grams. A German doctor gave the following description of the use and effect of the "steel arrows" at a meeting of the Stuttgart Medical society:

Three companies of German soldiers were feeding when two aeroplanes circled overhead at a height of about 1,200 metres. Suddenly one of the soldiers felt a sharp stinging pain in his right foot and thought one of his fellow soldiers had inadvertently picked it; but the pain was soon dispelled when he heard cries of pain all about him. The horse, too, became restive and two feet found wounded. Looking at his feet the soldier found an iron arrow had penetrated it. He immediately picked it out. About fifteen others had been hit, and the source of the arrows being discovered the men took cover under wagons. It was subsequently estimated that about fifty arrows had been hurled and every soldier was wounded in some part of his body. The importance of these weapons, particularly when dropped on retreating soldiers, is therefore considerable and the fact that about half the aeroplanes consisted of the lower limbs shows how vulnerable the lower limbs is to arrows from above. Recently the arrows scattered considerably, for in one case four companions were simultaneously hit.

One case was mentioned of an arrow passing through the scalp without injuring the skull, but another caused death by entering the left temple and passing out again by the right.

ROCKEFELLER TAKES TAX FIGHT INTO THE COURTS

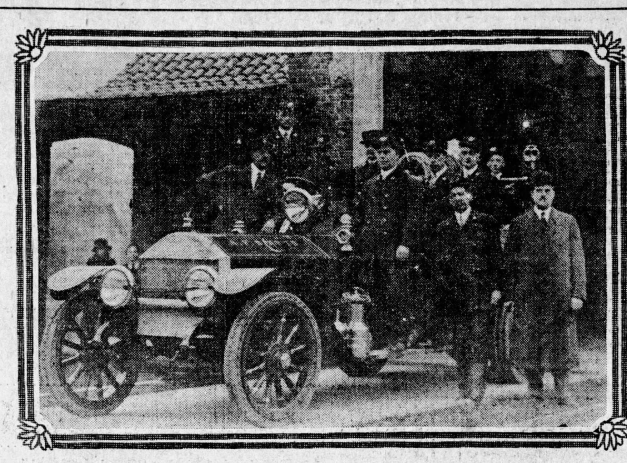

Asks Injunction to Stop Collection on Estate in Cuyahoga County, Ohio

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19.—John D. Rockefeller, through counsel, today filed in federal court a petition for an injunction to restrain Cuyahoga County Treasurer O'Brien from collecting taxes on $11,040,287 assessment on Rockefeller's holdings by the Cuyahoga County tax commission. Mr. Rockefeller declares he is a resident of New York state, that he maintains a residence there and performs all the functions of a citizen of that state. Mr. Rockefeller says he has resided in New York since 1882. The petition describes the Cleveland Forest Hill estate of Mr. Rockefeller as a place where he maintains a summer home and which he occasionally visits. The petition alleges that December 18, 1914, Mr. Rockefeller tendered to Treasurer O'Brien $25,641, his legal tax, and that it was refused. This amount is all Mr. Rockefeller owes Cuyahoga county in taxes, the petition states. Taxes on his personal holdings are paid regularly in New York, according to the petition.

The tax on more than $251,000,000 Mr. Rockefeller is asked to pay in Ohio was assessed on his Standard Oil and other holdings.

Tax officials contend that under the Ohio law by remaining here the greater part of a year Mr. Rockefeller became citizen for taxation purposes.

GORDON INSTITUTE CLOSING FOR CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
BARNESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 19.—Gordon Institute closed Friday for the Christmas holidays. School will again be resumed on January 5, with indications of there being on hand the largest enrollment that the school has had in its years.

The past term was by far the best that the school has ever had and applications are being received daily for the second term. The annual debate was won by the Philomathean society, the query being: Resolved that the marriage and divorce laws of the United States should be regulated by Congress. The affirmative was upheld by Cadet Lieutenant Stockbridge, Atlanta, and Cadet Harper, of Barnesville, representing the Philomathean. Indications point to a record attendance and a good spring term in every department of this well-known college.

OBJECTIONS TO BENNETT LIKELY TO BE DROPPED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19.—It is probable that the protesting fifteen citizens who were coming to Washington to oppose the appointment of W. H. Bennett as postmaster at that place will abandon their trip.

Mr. Bennett's name was sent to the senate on yesterday and today Senator Hawley, of New York, declared that unless they had charges to file against the fitness or character of Mr. Bennett it would be useless for them to come to Washington. Mr. Bennett's nomination will be confirmed next week probably.

EXPLAINS DEFEAT OF GERMANS AT TSING-TAU

General Says Lack of Men and Modern Equipment Was to Blame

TOKYO, Dec. 19.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Lack of soldiers and modern equipment caused the defeat at Tsingtau, according to General Meyer-Waldeck, German governor of Pukoon. In an interview with a Japanese newspaper, the general declared it would have required at least 20,000 men, armed with modern guns, to have resisted the Japanese attack, whereas he had a total of only about 3,500 men and shot of the guns in the Tsingtau fortress were of an old type.

"All our supply of explosives," he said, "was exhausted when the Japanese began the final attack." He said, "we could offer no resistance and all forts fell easy victims. With our force we could not oppose the Japanese, who had between 25,000 and 30,000 picked troops, equipped by 1,400 British troops with over 100 powerful guns."

A large number of our combatants were wounded in the previous fighting and we called out all German residents in Tsingtau. We had one fourteen-year-old boy and three fifteen-year-old boys. They were employed in the automobile transportation work."

About 200 Germans were killed and 500 wounded, according to the general. Fragments of bursting shells caused most of the injuries. The general paid a tribute to the bravery and marksmanship of the Japanese. When the Japanese artillery bombardment was at its height, he declared, between 500 and 600 shells hit each fort daily.

As the bombardment of the artillery progressed, the general said, the guns from the Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elisabeth, the German gunboat Jaguar and the destroyer, S-80, were landed and all subsequent fighting took place on land. There is believed to be little possibility of any vessels sunk in Kiao-Chow bay which included the Kaiserin Elisabeth and ten gunboats and destroyers, even being raised.

The German officers kept their swords at the express command of the Japanese emperor. The prisoners are distributed in different parts of Japan.

PRINCETON MAY HAVE MILITARY INSTRUCTION

Many Students Are Heavily in Favor of Adding New Feature

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 19.—Princeton university may have a course of military instruction during the second term, if plans now under way take definite shape. The movement started with a student petition to the faculty requesting that such a departure be made. A committee of the faculty announced that if a sufficient number of students was behind the movement it would report favorably. Nearly five hundred students have signed the paper, and it looks now as if the course would be begun in February.

If the plan goes through, the government will send an officer here and supply rifles and ammunition. Students will buy their own uniforms. Membership in the student company will be voluntary, and will not entail completion in time of war. Outdoor work will be held in the winter when extended maneuvers and actual training conditions will be required.

PURPOSES OF PEACE SOCIETY EXPLAINED

President Roy Dorsey Sets Forth Aims of Movement to End War

BY ROY DORSEY.

(President of the Atlanta Peace Society.)

The point of view of the organizers of the Atlanta Peace Society should be given to the public before a general canvass is made for membership, and believing in our cause and feeling that there is a tremendous interest in the peace movement, we ask serious consideration at the hands of the Atlanta public. When the suggestion that Atlanta have a peace society was made in the spring of 1914 the general public would have readily seen the exact purpose of such a society. Today at the very mention of peace, our minds turn to thoughts of the awful carnage abroad and men smile to think that Atlanta should better their efforts to bring about peace.

It is understood that the peace movement is for permanent and universal peace. When we realize fully the purpose and interest of the movement, we are not surprised to find that our community will feel that Atlanta is an intimate part of a movement, not its mere periphery, and that it is a part of the peace movement, not its mere periphery.

From our experience we of the south have lately learned that by reason of mutual dependence no two or more of our states can prosper unless they prosper together. Such a condition effects a mutual dependence on two or more of our states. Such a condition effects a mutual dependence on two or more of our states. Such a condition effects a mutual dependence on two or more of our states.

HOPE FOR PERMANENT PEACE.

At the conclusion of the present hostilities abroad it is generally hoped that the treaties of peace will carry with them provision for early recognition between all the world's powers looking to the conclusion of permanent peace pacts and solemn agreements limiting armaments. It may even fall to the lot of our government to entertain the peace efforts when the time for peace shall come. In the event the treaty of peace ending the present war is signed at Washington the effect on the representation of all the world's powers to a unified public demand on the part of all the people of the United States for the conclusion of a peace society for the purpose of permanent and world-wide peace is not to be considered.

But, first, let it be known that the organization of a peace society in Atlanta at this time is not to be considered as a mere step towards the end of war abroad and this society will not make a premature or unadvised peace committee. Except that it will make a premature or unadvised peace committee. Except that it will make a premature or unadvised peace committee.

The American Peace Society was organized in 1815 and at that time was an amalgamation of many societies of like object scattered over the country. Since the formal organization of the American Peace Society there have sprung into existence almost numberless smaller societies organized with the same object in view, and differing only as to territory covered. From this method of growth has developed an organization of associated peace societies, all affiliated with the American Peace Society as the parent society.

OFFICERS OF SOCIETY. The American Peace Society maintains permanent offices at the headquarters of the society in Washington, D. C., and from these offices literature and campaign matter is distributed. Washington, and properly so, is the center for the peace movement in the United States. The president of the American Peace Society is Senator Theodore E. Burton and the three vice presidents are William Jennings Bryan, Andrew Carnegie and William Howard Taft. Needless to say the organization of this great society is complete and its officers and agents are very active.

The plan of organization contemplates that each state has, at least, have one society which is designated in the constitution of the American Peace Society as a "constituent branch." We are proud to state that Georgia has not been slow to embrace its opportunity and has formed a state society known as the Georgia Peace Society of which Dr. Harry C. White, of Athens, is its honored president. The plan further contemplates that other and smaller societies shall be organized in municipalities or counties and these are called "section societies." The Atlanta Peace Society is a "section society" of the American Peace Society. This plan is apparent for subdivision down to the smallest possible unit, whereby the greatest number of people may be reached and the most effective work can be done.

The purpose of the movement is to effect and insure ultimately world-wide peace and the primary object of organization into societies is to educate the public to an appreciation of what can be done to insure universal peace by organization and popular demand for our government to use its most diligent efforts for the consummation of this object. Contrary to the supposition of some persons, these various societies are organized for a like and a definite object and right speedily in this object being attained. Consider the following articles from the constitution of the American Peace Society which are the Atlanta Peace Society respectively: Article II. "The purpose of the American Peace Society is to promote permanent international peace, to educate and organize public opinion in opposition to war as a means of settling international differences, and to promote in every proper way the general use of peace, judicial methods, and other peace-

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. JESSIE BUTLER.

Mrs. Jessie Butler, twenty-five years old, died Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the family residence in Conyers, Ga. She had been in bad health for two or three years, and her death was not unexpected. Mrs. Butler formerly resided in Atlanta and Athens, where she had many friends. She is survived by her father, J. P. Butler, one brother, Ernest Butler, and two sisters, Miss Estelle Butler and Mrs. Roy Reeves, of Atlanta. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Gordon Street Methodist church in Atlanta, and the interment will be at Westview.

MRS. E. D. DAVIS.

Mrs. E. D. Davis, aged 57 years, died at the residence, 491 Whitehall street, on Saturday morning. The deceased is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. J. C. Davis, of Atlanta, and Mrs. J. W. Davis, of London, Ga. The funeral will be held at the residence at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and the interment will be at Hill Crest cemetery.

MRS. CATHERINE HOUGHIN.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Houghin, who died Friday, will be conducted from the residence, 163 Peoples street, about the hour of 11 o'clock, by the Rev. John P. Purser. The interment will be at Westview. The deceased is survived by one son, J. L. Houghin.

V. P. HANSON IS SEEKING

HEIRS OF ALBERT HARRIS

V. P. Hanson, of Elgin, Arizona, has written Postmaster Jones for information about the heirs of Albert E. Harris, who was recently accidentally killed in Elgin. The writer thinks that Harris' family once lived near Atlanta. The dead man left home about a small boy and never returned. He had a homestead in Arizona, and his place is now being contested.

An advertisement to this effect is now running, and Mr. Hanson thinks the heirs should know this.

ful means of avoiding and adjusting such differences.

Article III. "The object of the Atlanta Peace Society shall be to remove the avoidable causes of international controversy, to promote justice and good will between nations and to educate public sentiment in favor of adopting arbitration or other pacific methods of settling international disputes, as a substitute for war."

The peace movement is proceeding with the hope that each county will organize its peace society and that the societies of every county will be affiliated with the peace society of the state and the societies of the states will be affiliated with the American Peace Society, which will have been educated to the point of view of the pacifists. At such a time the people of all the civilized states of the world shall be sovereign and of like mind, and wars shall be no more.

The hope of the Atlanta Peace Society is to fulfill this plan by making a campaign for peace, and although we shall be little more than a grain of sand in a desert in this world-wide movement, yet in activity there is potency and other means of making peace to organize, declare for and educate for peace to the end that universal peace shall be ultimately attained.

JUDGE SPEER BELIEVED TO BE PREPARING HIS DEFENSE

T. S. Hawes Asks More Time for Jurist to Give Views on New Judgeship

BY MARSH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19.—Senator Culberson, of Texas, chairman, today received a telegram from T. S. Hawes, of Baltimore, requesting that the senate judiciary committee give Judge Speer until next month in which to submit his views on the South Georgia judgeship bill pending before the committee.

The telegram was dated Valdosta, where Judge Speer has been holding court all week, and it is presumed that Mr. Hawes sent the message at the request of the judge. It is believed, also, that the request for the extension was sent during the illness of Judge Speer. The telegram was received by the senate judiciary committee at 11 o'clock today. It is believed that the committee will grant the request for an extension of time to the judge.

Mr. Hawes is a prominent lawyer and a member of the Georgia bar. He is a strong supporter of the South Georgia judgeship bill.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lott wish to express their sincere thanks to the relatives and friends for the kindness shown them during their recent bereavement. Also for the beautiful floral offerings.

Mr. H. B. Manning and family desire to thank their friends and relatives for the kindness and sympathy shown them during their recent bereavement.

slant judgeship in his district an effort will be made Monday by Senator Hollis Smith to bring the bill out of the committee with a favorable report. Both he and his colleagues, Senator Haddock, are anxious that the measure shall pass the senate at an early date as possible.

Republicans, members of the judiciary committee, have given verbal assurances that it is either their desire nor purpose to make a partisan question of the South Georgia judgeship, but it begins to seem as if a studied effort is under way to block the legislation.

Judge Speer's request for more time in which to submit comments on the new judgeship bill of course afforded the Republicans on the committee excuse for opposing Senator Smith's effort to have the measure reported Monday. And if the bill should be reported favorably Monday or at some subsequent date it would be so difficult to muster to kill it by a filibuster, so crowded and congested is the senate calendar at this short session.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lott wish to express their sincere thanks to the relatives and friends for the kindness shown them during their recent bereavement. Also for the beautiful floral offerings.

Mr. H. B. Manning and family desire to thank their friends and relatives for the kindness and sympathy shown them during their recent bereavement.

Miss Woolley Gives

Afternoon Tea for Visitor

Miss Marian Woolley, of Boston, Mass., who is visiting at her home on West Peachtree street in compliment to her guest, Miss Josephine Davis, of Birmingham, Ala., gave a delightful afternoon tea Saturday from 1 until 3, at her home on West Peachtree street in compliment to her guest, Miss Josephine Davis, of Birmingham, Ala. The spirit of Christmas was carried out in all the decorations, a profusion of Virginia ivy, poinsettias, holly and mistletoe being effectively arranged in the rooms where the guests were entertained.

An old-time well of stone masonry was icy clinging to the walls, and the table had an centerpiece of a mound of red carnations and holly, around which was placed silver candleholders, burning red.

Miss Woolley was gowned in pink brocade, draped in rose shaded tulle, and Miss Davis wore white satin combined with cloth of gold.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Mary Murphy, Miss Louise Parker, Miss Weyliffe, Miss Ellen Wolf, Miss Annie Winship Bates, Miss Laura Houston, Miss Brock, Miss Jeter, Miss Dodo White, Miss Madge Pollock, Miss Marie Cobb, Miss Helen Horner, Miss Louise Jones, Miss Brock, Miss Jeter, Miss Rosalie Davis, Miss Emma Jordan, and her guest, Miss Scarborough, of Columbia.

Miss Mrs. W. W. Banks, of Tifton; Mrs. Vassar Woolley, Mrs. M. W. Woolley, Mrs. Ernest Durbin, Mrs. B. W. Roy McMillan.

Miss Isoline Campbell, Miss Virginia Lipscomb, Miss Bertha Moore and Miss Mary Brown served punch.

Pritchett-Lyon

A quiet but beautiful wedding was that of Miss Lizzie Lyon and Mr. Robert Hugh Pritchett, of Evergreen, Ala., which took place at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Lyon, on the Howell Mill road.

The Christmas colors of red and green were used for the wedding decorations. Vases of rich red roses adorned the mantel, and the bride's bouquet was composed of red and white roses, with a sprig of holly and holly leaves were placed at intervals.

There were no attendants, and Rev. Mr. Boxer, of the Presbyterian church of Carrollton, performed the ceremony. The bride wore a smart suit of dull green velvet with hat to match adorned with a parasol. Her flowers were a corsage bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Pritchett left for a southern wedding trip and after January 1 will be at home at the Hotel Winwood.

There Are No Better Jewels
In New York Than at the Haynes Store, Atlanta

Diamonds and Pearls are the kings and queens of jewels.

Association with them is the privilege of the fortunate.

Imitation or faulty facets and dull "Orient" are not tolerated by the elite.

Buyers of diamonds and pearls trust only those in whom they have complete confidence.

The Eugene V. Haynes Company is accorded leadership among Southern jewelers because of inability to buy gems at correct prices, sell them at a fair profit, and give customers full benefit of the most expert knowledge.

Buyers of diamonds, like users of money, must have some means of being certain of SOUNDNESS.

The government certifies your money and you accept it at face value. Only an expert dares buy a diamond on his own responsibility, so the people trust the jeweler. The Haynes reputation certifies soundness of jewels bought from us.

Reputable jewelers inhabit New York; but with them you have not the intimate knowledge and close association that you have with the Haynes Company.

Come and see the wonderful collection our jewel caskets contain.

Store open evenings until Christmas.

HAVE YOU

TWELVE FRIENDS

IN THE WORLD?

If so, you will want them to receive some evidence of your good will at Christmas. Instead of expensive gifts, the custom now to send Christmas cards is more universal than ever. We have prepared a special package of Christmas Greeting Cards from steel engravings, consisting of twelve of our most popular designs. They come in envelopes all ready to be mailed, and the lot is sent postpaid for one dollar.

This assortment is an unusual value and you will have much satisfaction in sending such a stylish and artistic token of a Christmas remembrance. Order now. J. P. STEVENS ENGRAVING CO., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

THE approaching Christmastide will be one of the brightest in years. If all the plans so carefully made for the enjoyment of old and young materialize. Entertainments of every kind have been dated for each day of the week with special reference to the enjoyment of the college set who are returning for the holidays. Open house will be kept at all the clubs and efforts are being made to make the week of good cheer for the club members. Many large charitable entertainments will be given, in which center much interest. The annual Christmas tree of the Child Welfare Committee of the Atlanta Woman's club will be an event of Tuesday afternoon at the club when more than three hundred little children will be guests of the committee. Two other Christmas trees will be given Thursday afternoon. The annual tree for the little sick children at the Grady hospital will be lit at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Gordon Kiser and Mrs. John Hill, who are in charge, are exerting every effort to make this occasion surpass past years in brightness. The tree will be arranged in the second ward of the children's department and the little invalid children not able to attend or even to be rolled in chairs will have their beds drawn into the room to witness the glittering tree. A tree will also be held for the children at the Home of the Friendless at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Edna Avery Jones, the chairman will be assisted by Miss Susie Hallman, Miss Elizabeth Morgan, Miss Nell Prince and Miss Marion Goldsmith. Christmas morning the tree for the thirty-two inmates of the Home for Old Women will be lit at 11 o'clock and every evening through the holidays the tree will be lit for the inmates to gather around. This season the burden of the sorrow of the world seems to be felt by every one in common and in all parts of the city efforts are being made to make the Christmastide joyous. A cordial invitation is extended to every one interested to attend the various celebrations and to lend their assistance to the committee in charge in making the occasions memorable ones.

Sacred Cantata.

The choir of the Jackson Hill Baptist church, under the direction of the organist and director, Mrs. A. L. Cantata, will sing at 7:30 present a sacred cantata entitled "The Lord's Anointed." The chorus of sixteen voices will be assisted by Miss Johnson, violinist, and Mr. Dale, baritone.

Mr. and Mrs. Headley

To Entertain Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Headley will entertain at an elegant party Christmas day at their home on West Peachtree street.

Miss Elizabeth Blacklock and Miss Catherine Perry will serve guests.

1913 Embroidery Club

The 1913 Embroidery Club met Friday afternoon at P. C. Lumpkin, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hub Hudson.

Prizes were awarded in the handwork contest to Miss Beanie Bumstead, Mrs. A. W. Eves, and Mrs. Frank Bumstead, for the most original and useful articles made. The prizes were gold and white plates.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. K. Jenkins, 18 Highland avenue, Thursday, December 23. Members are requested to come at 2:30 o'clock, as the Christmas tree for members and children will be given at this meeting. Also plans will be completed for the annual banquet the club will give to their husbands and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bumstead, 479 Euclid avenue, on the night of December 31.

Afternoon Bridge Party

Mrs. Jack Lockhart entertained very pleasantly Thursday afternoon at a bridge party. The decorations were red bells and holly branches, and the table cards were decorated with small figures of Santa Claus.

The first prize, a cut-glass vase, was won by Mrs. Thomas Owens and the consolation prize, a leather bridge set, was cut by Mrs. Beale Zaban. Mrs. Jack Lockhart was crowned in turquoise chapeau and lace. A number of friends enjoyed the hospitality of the afternoon.

Weddings of the Week

Baker-Garland

GRiffin, Ga.—One of the most beautiful weddings of the year was that of Miss Sara Frances Garland and Mr. Walter Nolan Baker, of Atlanta, which took place Friday evening at 7 o'clock at the First Baptist church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Sammons.

The church decorations of palms, ferns, roses and carnations were artistic in every detail. Immediately before the ceremony Mrs. Clifton Thompson sang "Oh Holy, Fair and Sweet." The wedding was a most beautiful and successful wedding.

The bridesmaids were Miss Zelma Allen of Elberton, Miss Davis, of Decatur, Miss Josephine Johnston of Atlanta; Miss Mary Bass, of Griffin, and Miss Kansas Baker, of Perennial, Fla. Miss Ruby Stevens of Stevens, Pottery, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Joseph Palmer of Waynesboro, was matron of honor.

The groomsmen were Mr. Ralph Wolfe of Perennial, Ga.; Mr. Halsey Garland, of Griffin; Mr. Dan Marcus Meadows, of Newell, Tenn.; and Mr. Ben Frank Mathews, of Atlanta.

The bride entered with her father, Dr. Henry J. Garland, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Francis Ballard, of Jacksonville, Fla.

The wedding was beautiful in her wedding gown of white satin, with draperies of tulle elaborately embroidered in pearls and silver thread. Her veil was cap shaped with a fall of point lace and a train of tulle caught with orange blossoms, the sides and lower end of the veil applied. She carried an arm bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies. A pretty bit of sentiment about the wedding was that it was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding of the bride's parents.

A large reception, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Garland, followed the ceremony at the church. The house was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns, and a profusion of white flowers. The bride's table was an exquisite picture decorated with pink roses, valley lilies and tulle, with coral candleabra, pink tapers and pink heart shaped mints completing the details.

Reynolds-Kendrick
MATTHEW, Ga.—A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when Mr. Clarence F. Reynolds and Miss Lily Louise Kendrick were united in matrimony. The double ring ceremony was performed.

The bride was beautiful in her wedding gown of white satin, with draperies of tulle elaborately embroidered in pearls and silver thread. Her veil was cap shaped with a fall of point lace and a train of tulle caught with orange blossoms, the sides and lower end of the veil applied. She carried an arm bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies. A pretty bit of sentiment about the wedding was that it was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding of the bride's parents.

Goff-Morris
The marriage of Miss Annie Ruth Morris and Mr. Raymond P. Goff was solemnized Tuesday evening, December 19, at the residence of the Rev. W. P. Carmichael in Capitol View, who officiated.

Patillo-Gibson
TALDOTTO, Ga.—The marriage of Miss Katie Gibson and Mr. James Patillo was solemnized Tuesday evening, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. H. Gibson, the Rev. J. H. Allen, officiating.

Cornwell-Whitaker
CONTERS, Ga., Dec. 19.—(Special to the Atlanta Journal)—Miss Yvonne Whitaker and Mr. Ralph Cornwell were quietly married on Thursday afternoon at three o'clock at "Yella," the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Whitaker.

Reverend Robinson, of the Conyers Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornwell will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker.

VanDevender-McKee
Mr. Horatio VanDevender, formerly of Atlanta, was married in Austin, Tex., December 16, to Miss Maud Mae McKee, daughter of Mrs. Hollie McKee, of Atlanta. Mr. VanDevender is well known in Atlanta, where he was associated with the Western Union Telegraph company as a manager for several years. For the past four years Mr. VanDevender has been district traffic supervisor for the Western Union Telegraph company with headquarters at Dallas, Tex. Miss McKee is a well known channing and attractive member of society in Austin, Texas. After a brief trip of a week, Mr. and Mrs. VanDevender will move to Dallas, their future home.

Hill-Ritter
SPARTANBURG, S. C.—Mrs. Louis Anderson Ritter and Mr. Walter Farrow Hill were married Saturday, December 12, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. John Anderson, on North Church street.

Sartorius-Jacobs
Mr. Sol Jacobs announces the marriage of his daughter, Rae Iris, to Earl Laidman Sartorius, on Monday, December 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Sartorius will make their home in New York.

Fowler-Gregory
Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gregory announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy, to Mr. J. W. Fowler. The wedding was solemnized October 25, by Rev. J. G. Butts in Decatur.

The Week in Retrospect

Interest in musical circles of the city was the announcement during the past week in The Journal of the series of organ recitals to be given by the Georgia Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. In view of the pleasure that will attend these concerts, a short history of the organization will be of value.

At the institution and under the direction of Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, the Georgia Chapter of the American Guild of Organists was organized in Atlanta, October 6, 1914. It has enrolled among its members the foremost organists of this city, as well as prominent organists of Macon and Athens, and numbers of honorary members, some of Atlanta's leading clergymen and patrons of music.

Active membership under the American Guild of Organists, either as fellows or associates of the Guild, certifies that certain severe examinations have been passed, which prove the successful applicants to be competent organists and directors, as well as scholarly musicians of high theoretical and practical attainment.

The local chapter is made up of colleagues, organists whose names have been proposed by two active members of good standing and who have been elected by the council of the guild, no examinations being required in this case.

The Georgia chapter has been founded for the purpose of promoting a greater spirit of fellowship among Georgia organists, of raising the standard of their work and arousing a greater interest in the calling among the members themselves, as well as the public at large. It has evolved as a series of organ recitals to be given in the various churches of the city by the different members of the chapter.

The first recital was held at St. Marie's church, on Tuesday evening, December 15, Miss Eda E. Bartholomew presiding at the organ. The chapter was received and entertained at supper by the ladies and members of St. Marie's at 6:30, and at 8:15 the recital was held in the main auditorium.

It was a brilliant and auspicious opening. Miss Bartholomew needs no introduction to the Atlanta public. Her program was comprehensive and beautifully balanced, exploiting number and seven, which so greatly enrich organ literature at the present time. They were rendered with Miss Bartholomew's characteristic facility of execution and the artistic taste.

Deserving special mention were: Introduction and Praeludium by Reger; Toccata by d'Eury; Reve Angélique by Rattstein and Ballad by Debussy; the latter most bizarre and charming, suggesting the quaint form of the carnival. The chapter announces the subsequent recitals of the series as follows: Mr. Walter Peck Stanley on January 19, 1915, at the Ponce de Leon avenue Baptist church; Mr. Charles A. Sheldon, Miss Margaret Bartholomew, on March 14, at the Harris street Presbyterian church; Miss Linnie Blosser, on April 20, at the Park street Methodist church and Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft will give the last concert of the series on May 15 at the auditorium.

Prominent Suffrage Leader in City

THE brief visit of Mrs. Debra Breckinridge to the city during the past week was a source of interest and pleasure to the many who are interested in the suffrage organizations of the city. Mrs. Breckinridge, who is vice president of the American National Suffrage Association, is not only a young and charming woman, but is possessed of unusual gifts as a speaker. A large audience consisting of men as well as women assembled Wednesday evening in the hall of commerce hall to hear her comprehensive address on suffrage and outline of the situation in this country and in Europe. The many bright and clever anecdotes interspersed in the address provoked much laughter and on several occasions hearty applause. The noted suffrage leader, who is on a tour of the United States in the interest of the cause, had only a few days to give to Georgia and selected Atlanta, Columbus, Savannah and Augusta as the scenes of her lectures. Charming social courtesies were shown her in each place and while in Atlanta she was the honor guest at a beautiful luncheon given by Mrs. Robert T. Weyman, former Miss Madge McDowell, of Kentucky, and a grand niece of Henry Clay, Mrs. Breckinridge embodying all the grace and charm of the southern woman. Since her arrival she has been deeply interested in the advancement of the interest of women, adding the office of president of the equal rights association in Kentucky to her other duties as a member of the national executive board. At the meeting Wednesday evening she was introduced by Mrs. Emily C. McDougald, whose guest she was while in the city. Seated on the platform with the speaker were the presidents and officers of the several branches of the suffrage party in Atlanta.

Woman's Club Holds Important Meeting

THE women's club was celebrated with an unusually interesting program. Mrs. P. J. McDowell presided and then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, the chairman. The talk of current events by Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin was given with interest and the outline of the work of the free kindergarten by Mrs. Nellie Peters Black was heard with deep interest. The song "The Little Girl" presented by Mrs. William Percy in which she stressed the desperate need of unemployed women around the city led to instant action, which bore fruit in the form of a committee to meet the need. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. J. M. Smith, chairman of the committee, and the women of the club were divided into four groups. The first group, under the leadership of Mrs. J. M. Smith, presented a play by women alone, which was full of a wise and deep insight right before the eyes of the audience. At the close of the play, Mrs. J. M. Smith presented a brief sketch of several plans dear to her heart at the national level. The song "The Little Girl" followed, giving many an opportunity for the women to express their appreciation of the interesting talk.

For Charity

A HAPPY spirit pervaded the strand of interest of charity a number of Atlanta's most attractive young women barge and scow and sailed in the throng of patrons. The proceeds of the event went for the Little Hospital and the Howard memorial ward in the Home for Incubables, and the young women who devoted their time to the

WAITING FOR SANTA CLAUS

Christmas trees, the coming of Santa Claus and all the bright festivities of the Yuletide are being eagerly anticipated by little children in every part of the state. In the upper left of the picture is Alexandra, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Birkbeck, who was a recent charming little visitor in the city. Upper right: Edith, the pretty little daughter of Mr. W. P. Wathall, whose home is in Inman Park. Mary Meador Goldsmith, the dear little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Goldsmith, Jr. Lower left: Robert Lowry Block, the handsome young son of Dr. and Mrs. E. Bates Block and namesake of his uncle, Colonel Robert J. Lowry. charitable event of Friday afternoon were the girls with whom Miss Julia Howell would have made her Christmas. In her memory the young women who were her special friends pledged themselves to arrange for the maintenance of the little inmates of the ward which bears her name.

In the group who made the day successful at the Strand theater Friday were Miss Myron McCarthy, Miss Edith Morgan, Miss Elizabeth Dunson, Miss Irene Austin, Miss Emma Kate Anonous, Miss Caroline Munn, Miss Marion Goldsmith, Miss Helen Scott, Miss Laura Cowlin, Miss Annie Scott, Miss Annie Sykes Rice, Miss Edith Kirkpatrick, Miss Antoinette Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Milton Fargan, Jr., Mrs. Richard McCarthy, Mrs. Marion Smith, Miss Mary Brown, Mrs. Marion Simpson, Miss Jessie Jones, Miss Isabel Kuhn, Miss Mary Helen Moody, Miss Jennie Knox, Miss Harriet Caldwell, and Miss Fannie May Ott.

Wedding of Interest in Montgomery

A WEDDING of much interest was that of Miss Emily Bandy, of Montgomery, Ala., and Mr. Joseph Stum-phrey, of Atlanta, which took place Tuesday evening at St. John's Episcopal church at Montgomery.

The bridegroom was accompanied from his home by a group of friends, including Mr. Dan McDougald, Mr. William McBurney, Dr. William Ragan, Mr. Winifred Peters, Mr. A. J. Ryan and Mr. Lynn Warner, who acted as groomsmen, and they were joined by Dr. Walter Riser, of Roanoke, Va., brother of the bridegroom, who acted as best man.

The ushers were friends from Montgomery, including Mr. Allen McNeal, Mr. G. B. Getty, Mr. Logan Martin and Mr. Robertson Allen, of Charleston, S. C.

Miss Margaret Leonard, of Charleston, was maid of honor, and a bevy of girl friends of the bride, including Miss Mary Beatty, Miss Mildred Saffold, Miss Lucy Pook, Miss Carl Pinkston, Miss Margaret Woolfork and Miss Kathryn Parris were bridesmaids, with Mrs. Dave Holloway as matron of honor and little Miss Mary Ross Flowers.

The bridesmaids wore beautiful models of pink satin with bands of gold threaded lace and carried shower bouquets of pink roses. The matron of honor was dressed in white satin and chiffon, and the little flower girls wore dainty frocks of white flower ribbon trimmed.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Harry Bandy, was lovely in her wedding robe of soft white satin chamoisee, veiled in full length with a design of seed pearls. Her veil was adjusted with a chapeau of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of bride roses showered with valley lilies.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. Biser and his bride will be at home at the Fraser apartment on Seventh street.

Debutante Luncheon

THE beautiful luncheon at which Mrs. Robert F. Shelden entertained Thursday, assembled a bevy of the season's debutantes and was given in honor of Miss Susie Blackmar, of Columbus, the guest of Miss Mary Murphy.

The approach of Christmas was anticipated in the artistic decoration of the table which had a miniature tree for the centerpiece strung with glistening tinsel and laden with pretty souvenirs which were later presented to each guest. Silver candelsticks held bright crimson silk shades and the place cards were Santa Claus heads peeping from the top of a red stocking.

Covers were laid for Miss Blackmar, Miss Murphy, Miss Nina Carpenter, of South Carolina; Miss Louise Broyles, Laura Collier, Miss Isoline Campbell, Miss Margaret McKee, Miss Isabel Robinson, Miss Rosalie Davis, Miss Mairi Horne and Miss Wynne Purtil.

Tea Dance For Season's Debutantes

A DELIGHTFUL occasion of Friday afternoon was the tea dance at which Mrs. and Mrs. John E. Murphy entertained at their home on Peachtree street in compliment to three of the season's debutantes including Miss Josephine Mobley, Miss Rosalie Davis and Miss Isoline Campbell.

The drawing room in which the guests were received by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Julia Murphy, and her sister, Miss Estelle, was a room of American beauty roses placed in the hall room on the third floor which were adorned with American beauty roses and many handsome palms and ferns.

For dancing the guests repaired to the ball room on the third floor which presented a scene of rare beauty with its decoration of French garlands of roses and smilax and flower filled gold baskets suspended from the ceiling.

The buffet table from which dainty sandwiches were served, was festooned with smilax and held vases of delicate pink roses. The crystal punch bowl was embedded in a mass of fruit encircled with roses and the dainty cakes were employed in pink roses.

Mrs. Murphy gave a beautiful gown of Nile green tulle with a net tunic finished with a small dose of frill of tulle. Miss Julia Murphy was gowned in pale pink satin chamoisee with deep folded girde. Miss Rosalie Davis wore a striking model of white and gold dress with touches of vivid green, and a large picture hat of black velvet.

Miss Isoline Campbell wore a French model of green brocade chamoisee, and Miss Josephine Mobley was gowned in flesh colored chamoisee with over-dresses of filmy tulle.

Miss Fraser to Give Party Series

Miss Margaret Fraser will entertain at a series of informal parties during the holiday season at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert T. R. Fraser, on Juniper street.

The party series will include luncheon, dances and dancing parties and the dates will be announced later.

Interesting Weddings

Klein-Simmons
AUGUSTA, Ga.—The marriages of Miss Esther Marks Simmons and Mr. Maurice Klein, of Greenville, S. C., was solemnized at high noon Friday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Simmons, on The Hill, in the presence of the family connections and a number of close friends.

Ceremonial music was furnished by the guests preceding the ceremony, the soft sweet strains of the wedding march announcing the entrance of the dainty bride, the maid of honor, the small sister of the bride, Miss Sarah B. Simmons, who entered alone wearing a beautiful gown of soft pink silk finished with delicate lace and carrying an armful of spicy pink carnations. The bride entered with her father and the groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Harry Klein, of this city.

The ceremony was impressively performed by Dr. Leo Reich.

Immediately following the ceremony and congratulations a buffet luncheon was served, after which the bride and groom left for New York and other points north before going to Greenville, where they will be at home to their friends after January 1.

Among the out-of-town guests in attendance at the marriage were Mrs. Dan Harts and Miss Minnie Harts, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Leland, Mrs. L. H. Plateau and Miss Gladys Plateau, of Greenville; Mrs. Louis Puckett, of Athens; Mr. L. G. Burns, of Thomasville, and Mr. Louis Simmons, of Atlanta.

Puckett-White

CARTERSVILLE.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, of Cartersville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Madge, to Mr. Freeman Puckett, of Thursday morning, December 17.

Rev. L. G. Hames was the officiating minister.

Mr. and Mrs. Puckett will be at home with the bride's parents for a while before going to their own home near Emerson.

Lentile-Dudley

COLUMBUS.—The wedding of Miss Lucile Dudley and Mr. Joseph Edward Lentile was a quiet but pretty event of Thursday afternoon, the ceremony taking place at 1:30 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dudley, on Fifth street.

There were no attendants and immediately after the reception Mr. and Mrs. Lentile went out to their new home in Wynnton, which has just been completed.

The bride wore a green cloth suit trimmed in broadtail fur and carried white rosette showers with lilies of the valley.

Walter Johnson Changes Mind, Deserts Feds

After An All-Day Conference
With Star Hurler Manager
Griffith Announces That He Has Signed Him to a Three-Year Contract

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 19.—Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington American league baseball club, announced today that he had signed Walter Johnson as pitcher for the Washington Americans with a three-year contract and that Johnson would play with Washington next season.

Griffith said Johnson would be paid a salary of $15,000 a year for three years—an increase of $5,000 over his last season's contract. Griffith said Johnson would return to the Federal league the $6,000 bonus which Manager Tinker, of the Chicago Federals, paid him to sign a Federal league contract December 2. The Washington contract called for a salary of $15,000 a year.

Johnson came to Kansas City after receipt of a telegram from Griffith asking him to meet him to talk over the option attached to Johnson's last season's contract.

Griffith said Johnson and Griffith had an all-day conference. Johnson said the option was legal.

The manager and pitcher reported an agreement on an all-day conference. Johnson said the option was legal.

"After a conference with Manager Griffith and legal authorities, I am convinced the option in my last year's contract was legal," Griffith said. "I am going to return to the Washington club and the terms offered me by that club."

Johnson arrived here from Cleveland this morning, accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, he told newspaper men was just for a Christmas shopping. Asked what action he expected regarding the option, he said he expected no action to be taken regarding the option to the Federal, he said he had no objection to it.

"So far as I know," he added, "the contract I have signed with the federal club for next season will stand."

According to the story told later, however, the conference with Griffith and his attorneys began soon after Johnson's arrival and continued until late in the day.

Gilmore Does Not Believe Report

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—I don't believe it, said President James E. Gilmore of the Federal league, when told that Walter Johnson had signed a contract with the Washington Americans.

"Johnson signed a contract with a couple of lawyers and they say he has signed with the Chicago Federals and accepted $6,000 bonus," Gilmore declared. "I don't believe it. The advance money was to apply on the salary of both years."

Johnson is too honest to repudiate his contract with me," Gilmore said.

Something like a year ago, when the Federal league was just beginning to attract the general attention of the public at large, and to elect some players from the National league, Gilmore was one of the organizers. He was certain on this point.

"I have had no opportunity as yet to see him," Gilmore said. "I will say, however, that we will do the best to prevent John breaking his word with the Federal league."

"The information is not correct," Gilmore said.

Chiefs Will Fight Case in Courts

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Charles Weaver, president of the Chicago Federal club, said tonight he would take every legal step possible to enforce Johnson's contract with the Federal league.

"I have had no opportunity as yet to see him," Gilmore said. "I will say, however, that we will do the best to prevent John breaking his word with the Federal league."

"The information is not correct," Gilmore said.

More Work for Nassau Teams

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 19.—The Princeton faculty has again raised the stakes in the Nassau tournament, which is being held here today. The stakes are now $100,000, and the teams are expected to play for several days.

HARVARD FOOTBALL TEAM OF 1914; EXPERTS SAY IT HAS HAD FEW EQUALS AND NO SUPERIORS

The football season of 1914 is now a thing of the past. The deeds of valor shown on the hundreds of gridirons of the country have been entered and catalogued along with the numbers of other events that deck the pages of history on each team's record. The season was a notable one in many ways. In point of general popularity the game doubtless reached its high water mark. Some teams had glorious seasons, others were disappointments.

Among those which hung up records to which future generations will point with pride was the championship Harvard eleven. Not within the history of the game has any team ever come through with a record showing more clearly its superiority over all comers than did the Crimson. True the team was held to the score twice during the season, but neither of these defeats was serious. By Haughton's eleven, and by way of proving that it deserved a place high at the top of the heap, the Harvard team won 23 and lost 12, giving 231 earned runs per game on an average. Hendry won 14 for the Pirates and lost 15, allowing an average of 2.84. Falkenberg, pitcher for the Naps the same year won 23 and lost 12, giving 2.21 earned runs per game on an average.

FURTHER COMPARISON. Carrying the comparison further on down the line, the American league will have these Schalk, Schanz and O'Neill. The National league has these: Schalk, Schanz and O'Neill. The American league has these: Schalk, Schanz and O'Neill. The National league has these: Schalk, Schanz and O'Neill.

QUESTION STILL OPEN. Yet there is to this day some discussion as to whether or not the Federal league is a real minor league. Undoubtedly it is a real minor league. It is a real minor league. It is a real minor league.

Doc Johnston Plans to Leave Cleveland Club

Former Southern Leaguer, Wintering at His Home in Chattanooga, Makes It Plain That He Doesn't Want to Play With Naps Again

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 19.—"Doc Johnston, with not a word of regret, says that he will not play for the Cleveland club next season." This is the remark which was credited to Doc Johnston in Cleveland last week, when he was drawn into discussion of the outlook for 1915. The statement was made by Johnston, who is hibernating here, yesterday.

No, it did not move him to tears by a long shot. In fact, it brought the well-known Johnstonian smile, that one which is telling the truth, and which is an emphatic assertion that Doc is no more anxious to perform in Napville next year than is Birmingham to have him do so.

Johnston's last season's performance was his best since he joined the Cleveland club. He was a star player, and he was a star player. He was a star player, and he was a star player.

Tough Times For Va. Circuit If Richm'd Goes

Loss of Franchise to International Ranks Will Come Near Disrupting League. Magnates Meet Tuesday to Consider Proposition

LYNCHBURG, Va., Dec. 19.—Richmond is primed for international league ball and the minor league ghost is haunting around the Virginia league corners. It is a safe prediction that the circuit will have a hard time weathering this appearance of the new era, although it has been able to hold its own in the past. It looks as though the national game is going for Virginia, even if the league magnates could effectively prevent the international league from occupying the territory around the old Confederate State capital.

Granting that this could be done, the fans of Richmond would be no more on the Virginia league, for preventing it from settling faster ball, that they would not see the Virginia league games for love or money. So, if Richmond is tenderly embraced by the international game, Richmond's fans are as far as the Virginia league, and if the Virginia magnates can choke off the game, the fans will be left in the lurch.

It is true, if not strange, that the very fellow, who a few days ago was thought of as a mighty little part of the circuit, is now the one who is pulling the loudest in an effort to hold onto the circuit. There was a time when the circuit might have stood the loss of Richmond, but that time will not be in 1915. When Lynchburg, Danville and Roanoke in the west, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Richmond, in the east, formed the circuit, there were two good teams to fall back on. Now with all of the western towns out, and the circuit made up of Portsmouth, Suffolk, Petersburg, Newport News, Norfolk and Richmond, things will be different.

It begins to look as though the Old Dominion cities are in for a real minor league baseball, and this year may come next summer. A rest of a season or two will make things look better, and then it may be that Richmond will have enough money to build a new "faster baseball."

With a view to getting the Virginia end of the matter straightened out, Richmond has asked President Rootwright to call a meeting of the Virginia league in Richmond next Tuesday. At this time they will make the league an offer of $5,000 for Richmond's franchise and reserved players for release to the International league. If Richmond the belief is held that the magnates will decide to make the best of a bad bargain, and let the circuit go, if they do not, a way will be found to take the Richmond franchise to the International league. The Virginia league directors know they are in for a bad bargain, and their better judgment will probably point them to a successful settlement of the Richmond business men are behind the transfer of the franchise out of the city and any amount of money that may be needed to finance the league can be had for the asking. Kneeling, The Richmond chamber of commerce knows the advertisement from such a move. One of the big moneys for money, if a whip is needed, will be the fact that Richmond will have faster ball than Atlanta, and this will have its effect in the Virginia capital.

Sport Briefs

The twenty-one man limit in the National league will be a great hardship for George Stallings. It means that he will have only twenty real ball players for the season. Last year the Braves used up six men for the outfield because of the scheme the "Miracle Man" worked against the right and left handed pitchers.

McGraw is to try Harvard's winning color next season in hopes it will have a good effect on his ball team. Next summer the Giants will wear black sweaters with red trimmings. The color scheme is copied from the Harvard football team, which McGraw saw in action against Yale. New York university colors have been the mode for the Giants for the last two years.

Kopf is the youngest Coach Mack will send to second base in place of Ed Collins next season. Kopf had a chance to leave the team as utility member of the team and he should deliver a high grade game, with McGraw and Barry to bolster him on either side.

Ivy Wingo has learned that it does not pay to talk loud and often. His little slip of the tongue last fall, telling that he was going to jump to the Reds, cost him $500 of a Cardinal money the bonus system inaugurated by President Britton.

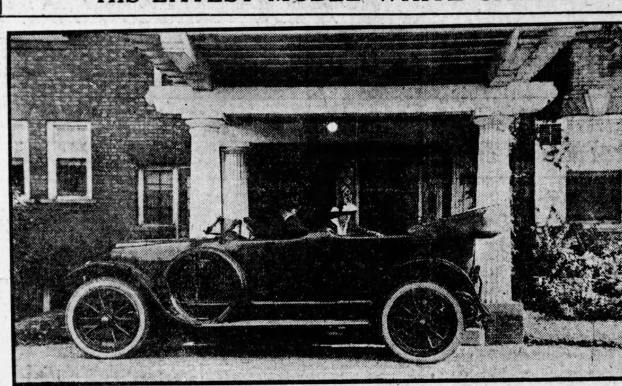

Hugh Jennings says he is perfectly satisfied with his present berth as manager of the Tigers and does not care to go to New York to lead the Yankees out of their troubles. Jennings is practicing law in Scranton, Pa.

If the authorities of Indiana university select Jimmy Ryan for the position of coach of the baseball team, they will make a mistake. The veteran outfielder knows the game, and knows how to impart his knowledge of it.

Rebel Oakes, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is doing a lot of missionary work this winter. He is after Duke Packer and Paddy Livingston, who live in Cleveland, to sign with him for next year.

Pidder Jones comes very near to telling us that he is in trouble with most ball players when he says they think more of their pay envelope than of winning ball games.

HIS LATEST MODEL WHITE CAR

Body designs of a distinct and beautiful type, presenting a new concept of the streamline principle and abounding in exclusive features, create unusual interest in the new series of cars announced by the White company of Cleveland.

Although each model shows many mechanical refinements, the new cars are particularly notable for the marked individuality of their bodies. The beauty of form, the richness of finish and equipment and the correctness of fashion have been expressed so harmoniously and in such creative treatment as to portray the craftsmanship of the custom builder.

In the new cars the White designers have conceived a new type of body which absolutely forecasts the fashion of the future. While the lines are of pure streamline form, the bodies are strikingly different from the many so-called streamline bodies.

The new design is featured by two separate cowls and is entirely devoid of all angles, or even sharp curves. There is not a single straight line in the entire body. The top line of the hood and the upper line of the body are pleasingly merged in the front cowl in a gentle curve, and even the backs of the front seats, always evident in appearance, are gracefully absorbed in the second cowl. Abruptness is found nowhere.

Practically every detail of body design and treatment has been given a touch of exclusiveness. The upholstery introduces a new standard for depth, treatment and materials. The seat-cushions of the thirty are twelve inches deep, and in the Forty-Five and Six are fourteen inches. Instead of the customary diamond-shaped, or cross-hatched tufting, the White cushions are built up in parallel tufts which make them more yielding and add to the symmetry of lines within the body. The leather is likewise new, being of an exclusive long-grain pattern used in White cars only.

All surfaces inside of the body are upholstered or leather-lined except the dash, door moldings and the compartments beneath the center cowl. No upholstery appears above the top line of the body, so that the finely finished edges of the body are left uncovered, revealing the cunning work of the body craftsman.

Outing Names Grid Honor Roll

Discussing the football stars of the season just passed, Outing has issued a roll of honor, on which are prominent players from all sections of the country. In announcing this list, the statement is made that the honor roll has been recommended by at least two coaches, and in many cases players have received the unanimous vote of every expert in the particular section in which they played. This plan is a fairer proposition than the selection of an all-star team, and should be of interest to football fans throughout the country.

Following are the men chosen:

ENDS.
Hardwick, Harvard; Merrill, Army; Stavrum, Wisconsin; O'Hearn, Cornell; Cherry, Ohio State; Robinson, Auburn.

TACKLES.
Halligan, Nebraska; Burton, Kansas; Ballin, Princeton; Tabor, Yale; Trumbull, Harvard; Buck, Wisconsin; Keeler, Wisconsin; Sullivan, Chicago; Codd, Vanderbilt; Kelly, Tennessee; Dobbin, Sewanee.

GUARDS.
White, Syracuse; Pennock, Harvard; Chapman, Illinois; Shenk, Princeton.

DEFS.
Jardien, Chicago; Rosenthal, Minnesota; Cook, Cornell; Maynard, Michigan; Journey, Pennsylvania; Pitts, Auburn.

HALFBACKS.
Rutherford, Nebraska; Chamberlain, Nebraska; Mauleher, Michigan; Seligson, Syracuse; Bradlee, Harvard; Mahan, Harvard; Knowles, Yale; Moore, Princeton; Toole, Williams; Mayer, Virginia; Gray, Chicago; Macomber, Illinois; Fosse, Illinois; Silas, Vanderbilt; Wilson, Illinois; Tolly, Sewanee; Taylor, North Carolina.

QUARTERBACKS.
Logan, Harvard; Glick, Princeton; Tow, Amherst; Richmond, Army; Padlock, Georgia; Curry, Vanderbilt; Russell, Yale; Good, Virginia; Williams, Chicago; Clark, Illinois; Barrett, Cornell; Hughtitt, Michigan; Gross, Iowa; Hightower, Northwestern; Pickens, Ohio State.

FULLBACKS.

Men so marked were on the honor list for 1913.

"HEADS UP"

Ever has pneumonia, got it good and hard.
Fever rising steadily, soaring heavenward.

Friends and sports are watching the doctor's bulletin.
But I'll lay five he stays alive.
I'm betting Johnny wins.

His friend was killed beside him in Johnny's new machine.
They said 'twould smash the Human Flash, but he came back serene.

A panic left him stranded and the sheriff took his store.
But, horse-faced and determined, he struggled back for more.

He broke his leg in sliding. He was beaten up by "Zim."
And they let him down to a fall and town when "Murph" tied a can to him.

Did he weaken or knock under? No so you'd notice it.
He polished up his motto: "Heads up!" and then he lit.

Out for that booming pennant and he won it, and won, too. World series club and honors from the Athletic crew.

"Heads up" was his one answer to the "game" of fate.
"Heads up" till death cuts off my breath. It never is too late!

And that's why I am straining with that horse-faced little crab.
He'll be there trying, fighting, till they plant him 'neath a slab.

When the spirit of an Evers will kick in death's dead eye.
"Heads up," says the doctor's fee.

"Heads up," will John reply. —Exchange.

White Sox Sign New Infielder

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Clarence Rowland, new manager of the Chicago American baseball club, today signed Al Brownick, of the Davenport, Ia. club, in the three I. league. Unless President Charles Comiskey obtains Eddie Foster of the Washington Americans or Fritz Malsel, of the New York Americans, Brownick will play third base.

Fine Record of Ancient Buick

It doesn't seem to matter how old a Buick car is or how far it has been driven, it still retains its power and speed.

These pages could be filled every month with histories and accounts of Buick cars which have traveled a hundred thousand miles or more and are still in daily service and giving their owners satisfaction and pleasure.

There is only one answer to this and that is quality. There has never been built a line of motor cars which have given their owners as much real motor car value as the Buick; not only in life and service but in satisfaction.

Buick Valve-in-head motors never seem to wear out nor lose their "pep." This was demonstrated in the automobile races held in Denver in October when an old Buick which had seen over $5,000 of hard service won the five mile free for all. The time was five minutes and twenty-one seconds, which is going some for a dirt track.

It is a quality that has never been equaled in the history of the automobile.

Sale of Yankees Still Hanging In the Balance

Conference Between Ban Johnson Fails to Result in a Definite Arrangement. Pair Will Resume Negotiations This Week

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Dec. 19.—Negotiations between Ban Johnson, president of the American league, and Colonel Jacob Ruppert and Captain T. L. Huston for the sale of the New York American club were broken off here tonight without an agreement, but probably will be taken up in Chicago next week.

According to announcement, Colonel Ruppert paid $420,000 as his highest price and that only after a certain manager, whose name was withheld, had been obtained for the team. Johnson said tonight he not only would not meet this price, but could not guarantee that the manager would be obtained.

The schedule committee completed the playing arrangements for 1915 today, but said they would not be made public until February.

Johnson departed tonight for Chicago. Colonel Ruppert said he and Captain Huston would depart for Indianapolis tomorrow and probably would go to Chicago Monday. This was taken to indicate that the deal had not been definitely declared off.

Baseball men here laughed at the story that Joe Kelley, former Baltimore star and leader last year of the Toronto team, would be manager of the New York American next year.

Wisconsin Bars Langford-McVey Bout

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 19.—The Wisconsin boxing commission today ruled against granting a permit to a local boxing club for a bout between Sam Langford and Sam McVey, negro heavyweight. Permits for contests in Wisconsin, it is announced, will be confined to white boxers.

Vandy and Vols Settle on Game

Teams Will Play in Nashville Next Fall and in Knoxville the Following Year

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 19.—The University of Tennessee football team will play Vanderbilt in Nashville November 8, 1915, and the Commodore team will play the Volunteers in Knoxville in the fall of 1916.

These games were provided for in a contract signed up Wednesday by the athletic authorities at the university, so it will be impossible for the local football fans to see the McLaughlin fight of gridironists in action in this city until a year from next fall.

Early in the fall a demand that the Commodore play Tennessee in Knoxville next fall was made by the Tennessee authorities, as Tennessee had been invited to Nashville for football games for the last many years, and as the Volunteers won the championship of the S. I. A. A. a few weeks ago, it was considered only fair that the Vanderbilt eleven come to Knoxville for a change, as it were. However, the Commodore was rather loath to play the University of Virginia team in Charlottesville.

The schedule committee of the Nashville university declared that it would be impossible for the Commodore to play Virginia and Tennessee away from Nashville next fall. The Vanderbilt authorities did agree to come to Knoxville for a game with Tennessee in 1915, and also agreed to play regularly in Nashville and Knoxville later, playing Tennessee in Nashville when they played the Volunteers at Charlottesville, and coming to Knoxville the years Virginia plays away from Nashville.

Three games for next year have now been definitely provided for. Clemson will play in Knoxville October 2, and Tennessee will play Vanderbilt in Nashville, November 8, and Kentucky state in Lexington, November 25. It is also expected that Alabama will play Tennessee in Knoxville October 23, and that the Sewanee Tigers will meet the Volunteers here November 13. If arrangements are completed for these two games, the Volunteers will have their quota of five games for next fall.

Three of the other games will probably be with the University of Chattanooga, University of Louisville and Carnegie Newman college.

Gentlemen:

I am just in receipt of your favor of November Twenty-fifth and the reason why I have not already written you is from the fact that I have been very busy since my return.

I had a very successful and pleasant trip in the McFarlan Six all the way from Atlanta to Miami. We made what we think a World's record in driving from Atlanta to Miami without shifting gears, except in crossing dangerous railroad crossings and making regular stops. The motor did not miss a lick from Atlanta to Miami.

I am wholly pleased with the trip just made with this car and I do not believe there is a car on the market with a better motor or one that rides any easier than the McFarlan.

Hoping and believing that you will make a big success with the McFarlan Six and with kind personal regards, I am,

Hanlon Beat Nelson In Birmingham Match

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 19.—Bobby Hanlon, of Atlanta, defeated Terry Nelson, of New Orleans, in an eleven-round bout at the Birmingham Athletic club last night, according to the referee's decision. Hanlon won the aggressive from the start and had Nelson's right eye closed before the fourth round. By round belonged to Hanlon, and he would have scored a knockout had not Nelson covered well.

Charlie Herzog, manager of the Reds, has selected Alexandria, Va., as the training ground of the Reds for next spring. Alexandria is the old training place for the Reds.

Genesis of War
In the very early times some kings, having made war, went forth in person to fight the battles ignorantly supposing there was no other way.
But they had not proceeded far till they were swept aside by a great multitude rushing to the front.
"Who are you?" asked the kings, in no small curiosity.
"We?" Why, we are the precious fools who are always ready to make somebody else's quarrel our own—patriots, in short!" replied the multitude.
"Precious, indeed!" chuckled the kings and risked their skins no more.—New York Evening Post.

Of course, if the car has not been properly designed, and has a tendency to overheat and to boil the water very rapidly out of the radiator, kerosene should not be used as it would be likely to boil away quicker than water, perhaps cause the motor to overheat, but if the cooling system is properly designed, kerosene is the ideal anti-freeze liquid.

five figures in automobile sales for the first months ending October 31. In that time, 1980 models of the 1981 cars were sold in California. Of those 1,596 were Ford cars. In other words, twice as many Ford cars—in this period—were sold than all other motor cars combined. And seven times as many Ford cars were sold as the next best selling car.

This certainly indicates that in California, the word Ford has become synonymous with motoring.

It is not surprising, then, that the cooling system freezing up when the cold days come around.

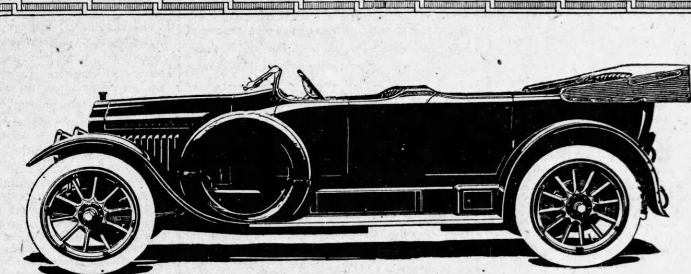

Of course, if the car has not been properly designed, and has a tendency to overheat and to boil the water very rapidly out of the radiator, it is not surprising that it is not used as it would be likely to boil away quicker than water, perhaps cause the motor to overheat, but that is not the way the properly designed, herosene is the ideal anti-freeze liquid.

Japanese Warnings.

The Japanese early sought for the truth, and their earliest knowledge was the principle that their strength depended on a healthy stomach. They eat very little and practice "Jiu-Jitsu"—muscular exercise from youth up. The stomach is the center of the body from which radiates our vitality, strength, our fighting strength. A healthy stomach turns the food we eat into nourishment for the blood stream and the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery restores and tones up the stomach walls, removes the poisonous gases from the system.

The first day you start to take this reliable medicine, impure germs and accumulations begin to pass out of the blood and are then expelled through the liver, bowels and kidneys.

In place of the impurities, the arteries and veins gradually get fresh vitalized blood and the action of this good blood on the skin makes that pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, rash, acne, and skin blemishes will disappear. Then you must remember that when the blood is right, the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys become healthy, active and vigorous and you will have no more trouble with indigestion, backache, headache and constipation.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery today at any medical or drug store. It is a powerful blood purifier, so penetrating that it even gets at the impure blood in the joints and carries them out of the system.

It is not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

For free advice or free booklet on blood, write Dr. J. C. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

RINGWORMS SO BAD
HAIR EATEN AWAY

Suffered Terribly. Broke Out in Small Blisters. Head Scaly. Eruption Began to Spread. Impossible to Rest. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

2223 16th St. N. E., Washington, D. C.

"Some time ago I suffered terribly from ringworms. They broke out in small blisters on the head because of the heat. I had been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for some time. The blisters began to spread. After a few weeks the head became a solid mass of scurf. In some instances the hair was so severely that it was almost impossible to rest."

"These ringworms had been running for two or three months and numerous remedies, both internal and external, had been tried but to no avail. Some one hit upon the idea to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment as I had been using it for some time. The blisters began to disappear. After continuing the treatment for another month it was completely healed of the ringworms." (Signed) Daniel W. Chase, Jan. 27, 1914.

Christmas Week at the Theaters

MADIE RUSSELL with
EDDIE LEONARD AT THE FORSYTH

Miss Percy Haswell in "Green Stockings" at Atlanta for Christmas Day - Forsyth and Bijou Have Special Bills

Miss Percy Haswell will present on Christmas matinee and night, E. W. Mason's admirable play, "Green Stockings." This is a play that has no serious moments in it, as every situation is so ludicrously amusing. It is a humorous little story, wholesome as a draught of pure spring water and pleasant every minute, even to the news of the death of Colonel Smith, which is one of the real funny instances of the plot.

The whole of the matter about "Green Stockings" is that an old country cousin in England required the elder unmarried daughter of a family to wear green stockings upon the occasion of the marriage engagement of her younger sister, Celia Parashy, still a spinster, has been on two or three occasions and now, when her young sister has married, is likely to be hindered by the green stockings from going to the wedding. The plot of the play is the story of the girl who, in the spirit of the moment, rises to the occasion and picks out of her imagination a mythical Colonel John N. Smith, who, in Celia's fancy, has called away from his regiment to West Africa.

She foists her imaginary lover upon the whole family, but lets her Chicago aunt into the secret, with the understanding that on October 11 she shall have published in the London Times the notice of the death of "Colonel Smith." To make good, Celia has to write some love letters to her colonel, but by the operations of fate the younger sister comes to it that this letter gets mailed. Eight months afterward, almost simultaneously with the Times' announcement of the death of "Colonel Smith," the colonel himself appears on the scene in a bit of ineptitude, and the humors of the circumstances from then on are delightful and the comedy ends pleasantly.

EDDIE LEONARD
HEADS FORTY BILL

Christmas week at the Forsyth will measure up to any holiday attraction the management has ever presented. It will be able to secure. Its headliner will be Eddie Leonard, the favorite minstrel, who has entertained as a star, with some of the high class minstrel attractions that have been seen here in Atlanta. He will, however, appear in whiteface, and will be assisted in the rendition of his own songs by Madie Russell, one of the daintiest and most fetching comedienne.

A feature of particular interest will be the appearance of Lillian Herlin, the former star of the "House of Al." She has been in vaudeville for several years, and is a dandy comedienne. It is promised that this act will elapse in entertaining show up any of the sort seen here in Atlanta.

The "House of Al" play presented here is a novelty all the way through, and will be a most successful one. William Burr and Daphne Hoyle, in their novelty sketch, "A Lady, a Lover, and a Lamp," will present probably the nearest novelty that is on any stage. This team is highly popular with the London society, and makes an annual visit to America, playing exclusive theaters, and being entertained royally in every city.

They will be contributed by Ed Wilson in the introduction of Buster, the doorman. This canine has attracted the attention of scientists everywhere, and has been pronounced to be the most wonderful dog that has been seen on any stage.

Nine magnificent specimens of physical manhood will be presented when Alton Ben Hamilton's Arabian Whirlwind Acrobats make their appearance. A Kansas cyclone is but a gentle breeze in comparison with the wonderful manipulations of these men.

La Crandall, a dainty and neat girl, will give a splendid exhibition of novelty wire walking, and the Pathe pictures will complete the bill.

CHRISTMAS ATTRACTION
AT THE BIJOU THEATER

Usual interest in the show in the Christmas attraction which is being announced for the Bijou theater. It is to be a merry musical comedy, bristling with melody, mirth and song, entitled "A Night in Old Heidelberg," which is said to be the liveliest musical show that has ever appeared at Atlanta at popular prices, and in addition to an unusually pretty chorus, delightfully costumed, will be such clever vaudeville numbers as the Harmonious Trio, nonpareil of song; (Les Ody, classic dancing girls; James Gallagher and Joe Anthony, well known comedians, and other vaudeville interruptions. It is promised that seldom indeed has such a classy and entertaining and cleverly performed performance been offered at popular prices, and no better selection could have been made for the holiday attraction. "A Night in Old Heidelberg" will be presented at the Bijou on Christmas day and Saturday, for four performances each day, matinees in the afternoon at 2:30 and 8:00 and night performances at 7:45 and 9. Sale of seats will begin Wednesday morning at the Bijou box office.

WILLIAM FARNUM AT THE MONTGOMERY

An impressive feature film production of unusual importance and power is the famous "Paramount" five part adaptation of William Barrett's supreme dramatic triumph, "The Sign of the Cross," which will open at the Montgomery for a run of two days, Monday and Tuesday. The subject is an elaborate version of William Barrett's wonderful popular drama, which has stirred the emotions of every civilized race throughout the world for many years.

Comparison, at least as regards settings and scenic effects, must needs be instituted between this and other plays previously produced dealing with the same characters and period, and it must be certainly said that the value of the present production is greatly enhanced by such a comparison. And while it lacks nothing in elaboration of detail, it has the advantage of a story which is actually unfolded itself in the favor of the public.

The part of Marcus Superbus, the dominant character in the powerful play, is impressively portrayed by William Farnum, who has no equal in the theater.

Tutt's Pills

regulate the bile ducts and put you in a good humor with yourself and the world. At your druggist—sugar coated or plain.

It is almost impossible to describe the drama in the most of its grandeur, and it should exert a tremendous effect upon the feelings of all audiences that witness it. The subject can be safely termed one of the greatest photo-appeals ever screened.

Woman Here Who Dared Perils in South China

Miss Anna Charles
Made a Journey No
Other Woman Has Ever Attempted

I PRAYED God to lead me to the proper man. I prayed and prayed; and then, before me rose a low-walled hut, and within I found mud floors and no windows.

For miles, no man or woman of white skin lived. This frail little missionary from the quiet town of Lancaster in Pennsylvania was alone in the Chinese village. Her escort of three soldiers had turned back to Kueilin, and no new troops had been furnished for the journey to Liuchow.

"I was never so afraid, never," she said. And for a moment smiled over her terror.

But though she smiled, this adventure in Southern China, three years ago, seemed near at hand, as Miss Anna Charles, a missionary of the Christian Alliance, told of it last week at the home of Miss Elizabeth Lewis, 334 South Pryor street.

How the Trip to Liuchow Was Made

Both she and Miss Lewis for six years did missionary work in China, and are here now for a year's rest; and Miss Charles is staying here for several weeks before going out to Lancaster.

"Yes," they both agreed, "that trip was the most venturesome thing we heard of in our mission experience."

In fact, it was the only time a woman alone has made the journey from Kueilin to Liuchow.

"I did have a Chinese woman with me," explained Miss Charles. "But before that no white woman had ever attempted the trip with such slight protection."

"We heard that the missionary at Liuchow, a rather excitable woman, had been left alone by the death of her fellow-worker. Someone had to go to her, and the lot fell to me. There were no white men to accompany me, so I started with no white companion—no one but the Chinese woman and three Chinese soldiers."

"There are no railroads in that country, except from Canton to Hong Kong; and the journey is four days. Never before or since, has a woman attempted it as I did."

"One day we traveled by chair; that is,

Marietta Woman on Boat Sunk By Germans

Mrs. Rambo Tells of Experience While Returning From Rio Janeiro

AT first there was intense fear; then, panic gave way to quiet confidence; with our baggage all behind us, we embarked in an open boat and set out for shore. In a little bit there was a puff, a whir, explosion, and the boat in which we had cleared for New York was settling beneath the waves.

At this point, Mrs. Preston Rambo, who lives in Marietta, shivers the least bit, and presses her lips tightly as though she hears again that dull explosion.

The steamer on which she was sailing was a British passenger boat—one of a large number that fell in the wake of the swift-steaming, ominous German cruiser, Karlsruhe.

Strange, but few know this Georgia woman was a passenger aboard one of the British ships sunk by the Karlsruhe.

From the first the captain had post-pooched thought of danger. They put out from the port of Rio de Janeiro for New York, and he kept telling them a British cruiser would offer protection till they had reached the safety zone.

"Never mind," he said. "All will be well."

And, indeed, the trip along the South American coast—one Mrs. Rambo has made before—was attended by placid weather and every prospect of a calm, undisturbed voyage.

Then, almost as though it had dropped out of the clouds, a black speck slipped over the horizon. It bulked large, and across their bow steamed the Karlsruhe.

Had they been within three miles of the coast, neutrality laws would have saved them. But the captain dared not change his course. A move in that direction, and an iron shell would have followed them.

The German captain came aboard, said he must sink the ship, and that the passengers must prepare to go ashore. Food supplies were placed in a small boat, and passengers and crew embarked. All baggage was left behind. They pushed off, drew nearer to shore; then, from behind, a dull boom, and downward went the British steamer, a mass of splintered wood and twisted iron.

Kaiser Gives Iron Cross to South Carolina Farmer

Count Thyme Wendel,
Who Lives Near Columbia, Rewarded
for His Heroism

GOD bless our good women for their love and care of us here. But, I pray constantly this murderous war may come to an end. It is too awful!"

A German count who owns a farm in South Carolina, and who was honored recently by the iron cross for a mad ride through a fortified city occupied by the enemy, in which his whole scouting party, except himself and one man were killed, has written in this broken, emotion way to his wife, who is now in Hanover, Germany.

She, in turn, has forwarded parts of his letters to Commissioner of Agriculture E. J. Watson, of South Carolina, who is a close friend of late German soldier.

The count's name is Thyme Wendel, and for years he has lived on a farm near Columbia, S. C. But at the outbreak of the war, he enlisted at once as a second lieutenant; and, since then, has taken part in the fiercest fighting in Belgium and in France.

For the last three weeks our soldiers have been living like moles in the earth, digging their way "little by little, closer to the enemy," his wife quotes him. In a letter to Commissioner Watson, "War is awful. All the horrors history tells of are nothing compared to what we see here in actual reality. For three weeks it has been impossible to bury the dead, either our own or the enemy's and the air has become foul with those unburied corpses and many poor wounded who lie among the dead must die a lingering death. To attempt to rescue them is fruitless, only instant death to the ones who try."

Receives Iron Cross for Bravery in War

Then, his wife tells how this South Carolina farmer—farmer, even though he is a German count—led a squad of King's lancers into the hostile city of Sedan to learn the enemy's position, and how they were ridden down by machine guns and only the count and one lancer escaped. How they returned, their clothing ripped by the enemy's fire but in their possession, news that was invaluable to the commanding general; and how, for his daring, he received the iron cross, which is Germany's badge of courage.

Following is the remarkable letter written from Hanover, Germany, by Count Wendel to the South Carolina commissioner, in which she quotes from her husband:

"The sadness and misery of the war," she writes, "only increase every day, for daily arrive hundreds of poor wounded. They are received by the Red Cross men and women nurses."

"We have plenty of places, plenty of good doctors and surgeons and nurses, and the wounded are tenderly and skillfully cared for. Hundreds who have loved ones in the field give their time to nursing, wearing the Sister's uniform. Everywhere is free help, free giving and free doing. All live in the one desire to help the 'holy cause' of the Fatherland."

"After my husband had crossed the frontier into France I did not get any news from him for three weeks. It was a terrible ordeal of suspense. I did not know whether he was killed, wounded, made prisoner, or what. I wrote to the minister of war at Berlin (as there comes the first news of the fallen or wounded officers) asking for news of my husband. They replied that they had received no information that he had fallen, but that for military reasons letters were not allowed to pass in or out of France, and so for a time the mail was held back. At last came the long-looked for and prayed for letter from my dear boy himself, short but with greetings and assurance that he was well, with no wounds whatever, although he had been in some fierce fights. But how good it was to receive those few hurried pencil scribbled words from his own hand. Soon after this came the news of his wonderful patrol ride, which he made on the second of September into Sedan. All the newspapers were full of it. It was set

His Clothes Pierced By Many Bullets

"The King's Ulanen Regt. (King's Cavalry lancers) to which he belongs, was advancing on towards Sedan, and as this city was a strong fortress, according to war tactics, they must, if possible find out beforehand the strength and position of the enemy before they were advancing. And this is the mission my husband dared; with a small squad of soldiers he made this dangerous long ride, and on reaching the fortress, with a wild 'Hurrah!' he dashed into the city, in and out through its criss-cross streets, followed by his lancer soldiers. Their sudden appearance spread fear and terror on whom they were advancing. At last, in an avenue they encountered a superior force of the enemy who had once opened fire. The count escaped, but with only one man. All his other brave soldiers fell. Yet, my husband did not get even a scratch. He wrote me that it took him many hours to realize and believe that he was bodily, really, quite whole. His hat, coat, saddle bags, all were pierced with bullets."

"Anyway, he brought the necessary news safely back to his commanding general, and on that evening they took Sedan. He has received many flattering congratulations"

No Dreadnoughts in Britain's New Navy

Newspaper Is Published in the Trenches in Argonne Forests. Battalion of Football Players

LONDON, Dec. 19.—England probably never will lay down another dreadnought says one of the foremost ship builders in this country who for obvious reasons cannot be quoted. All the dreadnoughts according to this authority, which have been laid down will be rushed to completion, but no orders will be given for any more vessels of this type. This policy was under serious consideration when the Austrians went to the bottom and the recent loss of the Belgavia has only served to confirm the opinion that the battleship as a fighting craft is doomed.

All new construction in the British shipyards consists of heavily armed cruisers of great coal carrying capacity, destroyers and submarines. For ten miles along the Tyne in coming into Newcastle the passengers on the boats cannot hear each other speak because of the din of steam hammers most of which are making destroyers and submarines.

When Sir Henry Scott expressed his doubts of the efficiency of the dreadnought just after England had placed her seal on it as the premier fighting unit of naval warfare, his unorthodoxy made him the strategic heretic of his time, but this war has come near to vindicating his theory.

France is also reported as hurrying the construction of submarines while Russia is said to have asked for tenders on a submarine of two thousand tons.

Paper Is Published in Battle Trenches

PARIS, Dec. 19.—"The Echo of the Argonne" is the title of a new French periodical edited from the trenches in the depths of the Argonne forest and the Germans have disputed the ground yard by yard for more than three months. It makes its debut with the announcement of a successful skirmish in which the "blue devils" have defeated the Germans once more in the Haussy forest, tells of the victory of the Russians in Poland and the progress of the Allies in the north. The leading article, double-columned in fat face type, announced the forthcoming distribution of 14,000 briar pipes in the trenches.

Parisian Estimate of Kaiser William

PARIS, France, Dec. 19.—The fierce light that beats upon a throne need not dazzle us in our estimate of the Kaiser.

If we met him in business we would find him a pugnacious, honest, and vigorous merchant; tireless, shrewd in the obvious things but totally lacking in finesse, and incapable of realizing his own limitations. Interested conscientiously in the arts and sciences, but without the finer perceptions, physically strenuous, sometimes annoyingly pushing, and a loud singer of hymns on Sundays, he would prove in the long run a tiresome companion.

And yet in the half vigor of his body and the uncomprehending doggedness of his mind there would be a certain courageous mortal clay that we must admire.

As a traveling salesman he would have been a tremendous success. He has that firm grasp of the obvious that makes tolerable the tediousness of rules of club-sports.

The usual cant of journalists ascribes to the Kaiser a "very complex" character. As a matter of fact he is simple enough. Mrs. Gatty in her excellent moral tale for girls explains that a weed is only a vegetable out of place.

The Kaiser is only an excellent business man out of place. A sovereign by divine right is now 300 years too late. We can no longer live under Roman theories. The Holy Roman Empire, which he refers to so often and so fondly, is not to be revived.

Battalion Is Formed of Football Players

LONDON, Dec. 19.—As an answer to the recent charges that football players are paying too much attention to their game and too little to recruiting, it is announced that plans have been completed for sending to the front a battalion of 1,100 men composed entirely of football players, both amateurs and professionals.

Another new organized battalion is to be composed entirely of men whose height is less than the official standard, recently reduced to 5 feet 3 inches. Members of this "Bantam Battalion" are to receive a special dispensation from Lord Kitchener, enabling them to join. They must be over five feet tall, and not more than 5 feet 3 inches.

Hammer Used By Modern Sampson

PARIS, Dec. 19.—When the time comes to turn the sword into plow shares before peace is assured the warring nations must agree that Ed Lemons' blacksmith's hammer must go in with the sword.

Blacksmith Lemons had been working at his field forge all night shoeing horses, for the fate of a draught depends largely upon the condition of the feet of his animals. The draughts were commanded to prepare for the charge and as the command came, Blacksmith Lemons leaped upon the animal he had been shoeing. The bugle sounded the charge, as the Belgian commander, seeing the terrible effect of shrapnel fire upon the German gunners, was determined to seize the advantage.

As the draughts started down the road, across the bridge, opening out for the charge across the open field, there was a thundering noise behind, a wild shout, and they saw the silhouettes of a blacksmith black from head to foot with the soot of the forge, astride a horse, riding forward at a gallop.

Lemons was standing in the groups, his arms and head bare, his face black, his leather apron waving, and in his hand he held a big hammer which he swung as he shouted to the draughts to come on.

The German infantry protecting the guns, was huddled in shallow trenches, and as the Allies' cannon ceased to roar, they arose and turned their fire down the hillside aimed at the draughts.

Again and again they fired. The blacksmith waving his hammer was at the head of his comrades. Unscathed he reached the German lines. A German sprang to bayonet him and the hammer crashed down opening his skull. He rode over the lines, beat down a gunner and when the guards swept up to capture the eleven men on the heights, the blacksmith with his hammer, was fighting at another gun, standing upon his horse which had been bayoneted, and cracking every German head he could reach.

AT THE STRAIT OF MAGELLAN

NATIVES OF TIERRA DEL FUEGO.

One of the Least Known Parts of South America Is Territory of the Magellans—Until a Few Years Ago It Was Thought Useless. Now, Being Developed Into a Great Stock Raising Country

By Frank G. Carpenter

THE Chilean government has new plans for exploiting and developing the Territory of the Magellans. It has sold at auction several million acres and has leased large tracts for cattle breeding and sheep raising. It is putting in public improvements at Punta Arenas, the capital of the strait, and elsewhere; and there are now something like one thousand miles of road in the territory. Some lands have been given over to two private colonization companies, and special inducements are offered to native Chileans who will go there to settle.

The Territory of the Magellans is one of the least known parts of South America. It consists of the southern end of the range of the Andes, including a long strip of country that runs from a little below Valdivia to the Strait of Magellan. It has also the islands at the western end of the strait, and the most of Tierra del Fuego. It comprises more than one-fifth of all Chile, and it has a land area almost as great as the state of Maine. About one-half of it is on the mainland of the continent and the rest is made up of islands.

This region has a fairly good climate. The northern part is temperate, and in the summer season, or from November till May, one can travel almost anywhere through it in a two-wheeled cart. There are now about twenty thousand miles of wagon roads in the territory, and these are being improved.

Stock Raising Industry Now Bulks Very Large In Chile's Commerce

Until within the last few years the Territory of the Magellans was supposed to be worth nothing. It was so near the south pole that many thought it was all ice and snow, and its mountainous character was such that no one imagined the lands could ever be of great value. Today this territory has developed a livestock-raising industry that bulks large in the assets of Chile. It has one sheep-raising company, capitalized at more than $7,000,000, which is now producing nine or ten million pounds of wool every year. This company owns 2,000,000 acres of land, and its sheep number more than 1,200,000. It has also 25,000 cattle, and more than 1,000,000 sheep last year, and the average fleece weighed almost eight pounds. It had more than a half million lambs, and it shipped vast quantities of frozen mutton to England.

La Sociedad Explotadora de Tierra del Fuego or the Tierra del Fuego Exploration society, owns 1,600,000 sheep and also cattle and horses. It has its own meat canning factory and a plant for producing tallow by boiling down sheep. A freezing establishment has recently been installed there, and another freezer exists at the Ito Seo, to which 150,000 sheep are annually shipped. The annual output of these two freezing establishments is almost 400,000 carcasses, and the tallow works connected with them have marketed more than three-quarters of a million pounds of that article.

Sheep Raising Era At Magellan Began In the Year of 1898

During my stay at the Strait of Magellan in 1898 the era of sheep raising was at its beginning. The value of the lands had just become known and stock farmers were coming in from Australia and Europe. The first sheep brought in came from the Falkland Islands, which lie in the same latitude about 200 miles away. The Falklands are now famous for their fine sheep. The first exportations to the Strait of Magellan occurred in 1878, eleven years after the flocks had increased to 40,000, and when I first visited Tierra del Fuego they were considerably over a million. That time one of the largest sheep owners was the American consul, a Russian by birth, who had spent most of his life in the Magellans. He had 340,000 acres of land in Tierra del Fuego, and his house at Punta Arenas was one of the finest of Chile. It is of red brick covered with stucco, and is so finished that it looks like a light brown stone. Every part of the building was brought in from abroad, and imported from Buenos Aires or Santiago. The house cost something like $100,000, and is still the wonder of this part of the world.

The grazing farms of the Strait of Magellan are not only on the mainland, but also on Tierra del Fuego. They number about 100, and each flock has its own shepherd, and each flock has its own shepherd, and each flock has its own shepherd, and each flock has its own shepherd.

Tierra del Fuego is half as big as the state of Ohio, and the greater part of it is made up of plains and wide stretches of level ground covered with grass which is green in the summer and reddish brown when winter comes on. This grass furnishes good grazing all the year round. In the winter the sheep sometimes dig down through the snow and as a rule the snows melt soon after falling. The grasses of the Strait are noted for their richness and sweetness. They are excellent for sheep and cattle, and every part of the wool and they would feed far more stock than they do were it not for the rats. It is a light brown stone. Every part of the building was brought in from abroad, and imported from Buenos Aires or Santiago. The house cost something like $100,000, and is still the wonder of this part of the world.

Farms of Del-Fuego

Like the Australian: 2,000 Sheep in Flock

The sheep farms of Tierra del Fuego are much like those of Australia. They are fenced with wire and the sheep are kept in large paddocks, some of which are as big as an ordinary American town. The average flock contains about two thousand head, and each flock has its own shepherd, aided by dogs. The dogs are Scotch collies, and are used as rat exterminators. They are driven over the ground at the rate of their burrows are tramped to death by them.

The most of the shepherds are Scotchmen, who came to the Strait of Magellan on five-year contracts. They receive about $30 or $40 a month, and have in addition house rent, fuel and meat. Their houses are two or three room shacks scattered over the farm. The fuel comes from the woods, and their meat is mutton from the flocks they herd. On the whole, the farms are almost self-supporting.

The most important part of the year at the Strait of Magellan is when the shearing is done. This season begins in January, and on the big ranches it may last for two months. Much of the work is done by professional shearers, though the shepherd comes in to help handle the animals. On some of the farms this work is paid for by the fleece. The present scale of wages fixes the rate at $4.13 per hundred, or a little more than 4 cents per fleece. When a man begins to shear he is given a booklet, in which is recorded the number of animals he shears during the week and the amount to his credit. If any dispute arises it is to be settled by a committee composed equally of the owners and employees. The company furnishes the shears, and every man gets three pairs of shears, at the start and an additional pair for each thousand animals. At 4 cents a sheep the man can make very good wages.

Amount of Wool Is Now Larger Than Our Output

The average fleece of wool now produced in Tierra del Fuego is much larger than the average fleece of the United States. It runs at seven and a half pounds and upward. The wool is of good quality, having a staple of three or four inches and curling at the same price as the wool of New Zealand. The sheep are not washed and the wool is exported in its greasy state. The most of it goes to Great Britain, and the remainder to Germany, Belgium and France. It is shipped in bales of 450 pounds net.

The capital of the Territory of the Magellans is Punta Arenas. This place has now 20,000 inhabitants and it is the metropolis of the strait. It is situated on the mainland, facing the great island of Tierra del Fuego. Just about half way between the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans. It is more than a hundred miles north of Cape Horn, and it has the whole length of the strait.

Church Leaders Are Taking Part in War

Chinese, Write Letters in Their Own Blood—Progress Is Slow, But Sure, says the Kaiser

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The archbishop of Canterbury and by Dr. D. G. The German court chaplain, have refused to sign an appeal addressed to the Christian churches urging them among other things "seriously to keep peace before their eyes in order that bloodshed may be avoided."

The appeal has been signed by many prominent divines including Bishop Groer, of New York, and Bishop Tuttle, of St. Louis. But although both the Anglican prelate and the German doctor of divinity are in entire accord with the signatures, as the correspondence just published makes plain, in devoutly hoping that peace shall soon be restored, each is of the opinion, apparently, that the only peace to be desired is that founded on the triumphant demonstration of the righteousness of his country.

The archbishop writes: "You may be certain that at the first moment when it seems to me that an opening is presented for securing a righteous and enduring peace I shall do my utmost to urge it. But it is clear that that moment, greatly as we long for it, has not yet come."

The conflict which has been forced upon Europe (I impute no motive but merely state a fact) must, I fear, now that it has begun, proceed for the bringing to an issue the fundamental moral principle of faithfulness to a nation's obligation to its solemnly pledged word. The recognition of the moral validity of such an obligation is fundamental to the maintenance of peace and progress of the world.

Dr. Dryander takes strong exception to a paragraph of the appeal which reads: "The tangle of underlying and active causes of the course of time, and the profane and selfish events which led to the breaking of peace, are left to history to unravel." He declares it would be impossible for him to sign that statement. He writes:

"History will certainly show to us in a different light than that we can now see through the dark clouds of dust arising from the arena of the present struggle. But that history will show only all the clearer—as has been done already—the rightness of our cause, upon this firm conviction of ours are founded our good confidence, our confidence and our resolution in the terrible distress of the present time. . . . If anyone is attacked on four sides and defends his life, he acts in self-defense and fulfills a Christian duty. We are in this situation."

High Tribute Paid East Indian Troops

LONDON, Dec. 12.—High tribute is paid the marksmanship and courage of the East Indian troops by an English soldier in a letter printed in the Daily News.

"On one occasion," the letter said, "I saw a soldier of the 10th Gurkha, standing about twelve yards from the enemy, throw his knife at the goat with such deadly aim that its head was cut clean off."

"They can throw their weapons at a distance of 50 yards, and have no difficulty in hitting their mark. They are excellent fighters. With the belief to die in war means eternal Paradise they have no hesitations in plunging right into the thick of the battle. The only difficulty is to keep them from rushing at the enemy before the order is given. They cannot wait, but they must leave the trench and wriggle their way up to where the enemy is, and then deal their deadly blow."

Letters Written In Own Blood

PAKING, Dec. 19.—T. H. e American minister, Paul S. Caspary, received several letters from Chinese signed with their own blood. One or two of them appealed to the minister with the Japanese, others asked that America attempt to cause a cessation of the war in Europe. It is the custom of Chinese to sign letters or even to write them with blood in place of ink, when the reason for writing is grave or nobly inspired. The saying is that the writer "cut off a finger and wrote with his blood," but as a rule a small incision in the skin supplies sufficient blood for the writing of a letter.

Progress Is Sure, Says the Kaiser

STUTTGART, Germany, via Amsterdam, Dec. 19.—"Our progress is slow but sure," declared the Emperor William in a speech at the headquarters of the Warburg Bankers, as reported by the Tagblatt. The emperor, accompanied by the crown prince, reviewed the Saxons, and declared in a congratulatory speech that "without pause" would be no progress made in the present war." Both the Kaiser and the crown prince wore new uniforms.

Budapest's Hospitals Marvels in Big War

Budapest's military hospitals are a marvel in hygiene and surgical efficiency. One of them is under the management of Dr. Jules Dollinger, professor of surgery of world-wide reputation. The establishment was equipped and is being maintained and supplied at a cost of $1,000,000 a year. It is a marvel of the city of Budapest and its surroundings.

Famous Surgeon Directs One Hospital

The second hospital was equipped and the expenses of maintenance are borne by the bankers of Hungary, and for this reason it is popularly known as the "Bankers' Hospital." Over 600,000 Kronen ($120,000) was spent in equipping the building, which is now being intended to be utilized for the manufacture of electric appliances. Dr. Wilhelm Manninger, who is a prominent figure of the International Medical convention in New York last March, is head of the establishment. So well organized is the hospital that within 30 seconds of his arrival a man can be placed under surgical care.

So well organized is the hospital that within 30 seconds of his arrival a man can be placed under surgical care.

The second hospital was equipped and the expenses of maintenance are borne by the bankers of Hungary, and for this reason it is popularly known as the "Bankers' Hospital." Over 600,000 Kronen ($120,000) was spent in equipping the building, which is now being intended to be utilized for the manufacture of electric appliances. Blaming Churches and Its Modern Habit

Work of the Church Always Is to Save As Many From Sin As Possible

By Bishop W. A. Candler

WITH a certain class of minds the remedy for all social ills and economic discomforts is found in censuring the government or blaming the church. Men of this type being unwilling to find fault with themselves wish to cast the blame for their misfortunes upon the organized forces of society, and they pick the state and the church as the chief sinners to be condemned. They proceed on the false assumption that every evil can be cured by the application of some political remedy or ecclesiastical panacea.

Now, the truth is that in a world inhabited by free agents, who persist in sinning, there must always be suffering, which no earthly power can prevent or remove. Especially where these free agents are crowded together, as they are in large cities, ignorance, selfishness, and vice will always abound with all their fearful train of attendant miseries. Neither the state nor the church can wholly eliminate these evils. As long as men are free some of them will sin, and as long as any of them sin there will be incurable suffering in the community. God and nature have ordained that the way of the transgressor is hard, and inseparably joined by ties of flesh and blood with every transgressor are innumerable persons who must suffer with him. This upon the whole is probably best for humanity, as God would have made the case different.

Time to Rebuke the Criticisms of Church

All that the church can do is to save as many people from sin as possible and relieve as much suffering as it can. The gospel itself cannot be made the power of God to salvation to any but those who believe; unbelievers voluntarily put themselves beyond the reach of its saving influence and they cannot justly blame any but themselves for its failure to save them. They gain nothing by trying to shift the blame from themselves to the church.

It is time to rebuke with emphasis the prevalent habit of charging upon the church the responsibility for all the wrongs and ills of the social system. We have had quite enough of that class of reformers who are weary of accusing the church of failing in its discharge of duty because the particular evils which they condemn have not been extirpated long ago. These evils exist in spite of the protests of the church. Men of this world have resisted the warnings and teachings of the church with reference to these things, and upon them the blame must be placed. There is not a moral evil in the land which is not weaker than it would be, if the church did not exist, and there is not a good thing in the country which would not suffer much, if the church ceased to live.

Here and there may be found a preacher who joins the world in this cry against the church. This he does in order to win the praise of worldly men. He pollutes the pulpit with the slanders of the church, which is the Bride of Christ according to the Scriptures, and counts himself a prophet of God because evil men applaud his scandalous performance. Such a man in the pulpit "wears indignation and fatigues disgust."

Church Remains the Foe of Evil

And it sometimes happens that the pulpit echoes these sentiments until the man in the pew begins to wonder, as he listens to the vigorous condemnation of the church and its members, whether there is any real religion save that which exists outside the church. In view of this presentation of the case, this blaming the church and its membership every evil which exists under the sun, is being a trifle overdone.

"The church does not seek to avoid fault-finding, no matter of what kind it may be, nor does it seek to evade its full share of responsibility for the evils which exist in society, but it has a right to ask that the presentation of facts be fair and just. In spite of all her failures and defects it remains true that the church of God is today the most dreaded foe of evil and the strongest champion of righteousness and justice which the world possesses."

"One of the bulletins issued last November by the Federated Churches of America giving the following facts in regard to social reform workers: Ninety per cent of those engaged in associated church work, eighty-eight per cent of those engaged in social work, and ninety per cent of those engaged in general social work are church members."

Commenting upon the facts contained in the bulletin to which the editor of the Guardian alludes in his editorial, Dr. Graham Taylor also has spoken some plain and sensible words. Among other things he said:

"across the frontier in the rear, as well as the vanguards of our civil and social progress, those who constitute the rank and file doing the remedial, constructive work in phil-

ARTISTS HAVE A REAL BOHEMIAN PARTY

Atlanta Now a City of Offices

By Ivan E. Allen

ABOUT twenty years ago when Atlanta's first modern office building, the Equitable (now called the Trust Company of Georgia building), was built, some of the regular calamity howlers, asked the question, "Who will rent these offices?" And so far as I know, this oft-repeated question has never been answered, for filling the buildings with tenants seems to have been easier than compiling a classified list of the prospective tenants.

Here are some of the largest strictly business office buildings from eight to eighteen stories high:

Candler building, 418 rooms.
Trust Company of Georgia building, 320 rooms.
Hunt building, 430 rooms.
Atlanta National Bank building, 278 rooms.
Third National Bank building, 255 rooms.
Empire building, 315 rooms.
Grant building, 261 rooms.
Hewley building, 490 rooms.
Empire Life building, 130 rooms.
Realty Trust building, 130 rooms.
Walton building, 36 rooms.
Atlanta Trust building, 35 rooms.
Grand Theater building, 100 rooms.
Fourth National Bank building, 320 rooms.
Rhodes building, 100 rooms.
Austell building, 250 rooms.
Peters building, 100 rooms.

Over four thousand (4,000) rooms in only seventeen buildings, besides a score of smaller buildings, such as the Chamber of Commerce, Journal, Gould, Inman, Commerce Hall, Greenfield, Alfriend, Constitution, Moore, Klier, Throver, Brown & Randolph, Candler Annex, and a dozen other buildings.

In the foregoing compilations neither the City, State, Federal or single corporate buildings are included, such as the Southern Railway, Gas and Electric, City Hall, State Capitol, Court House, and three Telephone buildings.

Approximately 6,000 office rooms, more than 10,000 occupants, each the support of two at home, on an average, besides themselves, which means that Atlanta's office buildings support nearly 20,000 of her most prosperous citizens.

The question of where the occupants of the office buildings is an asset or a liability to the city is never asked, but much is written about the great advantages of manufacturing and industrial plants' pay roll, etc., to a city. Both are valuable and desired, but certainly the office employees as a class are the most desirable; their work is regular, their pay is more, they are better educated, they buy homes, open bank accounts, educate their children, live well, and buy the best market available; they run automobiles, employ chauffeurs, give employment to cooks and maids, patronize the theaters and support the religious, charitable and civic organizations of the city from the day they come here.

To analyze the tenants of office buildings and their influence upon the city, divide them into two classes:

First. The dependables upon local patronage represent one-third of the office building tenants.

Second. Those securing their business from the country at large represent two-thirds of the office building tenants.

In the first class, physicians, dentists, lawyers, engineers, architects, etc., probably derive eighty-five per cent of their income from home people.

In the second class, manufacturers' agents, brokers, distributors, branch offices, insurance adjusters, loan and investment companies, insurance agents, etc., derive eighty-five per cent of their income from outside the city proper and spend or invest all of it there.

The salaries of office building tenants average more than double the pay roll of factory help.

Picture Is Drawn That Represents Every Artist--Vast Easel Is Slung and Everyone Contributes to the Composite Picture

THE picture was called "A Wedding." They drew it last week at the Bohemian entertainment given to the Artists' club at Harry Osgood's home in Inman Park. Each artist contributed a stroke or two to the picture, and some who were not artists but have had the happy faculty of creating since the first world and Art began together.

They were all in fancy costume. Harlequins and Columbines and kites and doves, girls of Holland, girls of France, and Indians, galleons, knights. Wilbur Kurtz was a Torador, his wife a witch woman; Miss Virginia Woolley was a Dutch maid, and Harry Osgood donned a genuine Norse costume that came from the lower Nile. He looked very bizarre and Ohelohab. There were dances young and dances old, confetti flew, all was very bright and joyous then, when the hours were waning on toward midnight, the picture was drawn.

They selected its title believing that it gave room for pathos, pleasure and real skill. You see all sorts of folk and every kind of human emotion at a wedding.

A vast easel was slung and everybody armed with charcoal. Miss Marie Haines began. She hesitated, made a sweep or two with the charcoal, and a tiny bell appeared on the white canvas. It looked very lonely until her partner drew a church around it. Then ideas came thick and fast as every artist took his seat in turn before the embryonic picture.

Bride and groom, priest and priestess, weeping mother, nervous best man, quivering father—all appeared in rapid succession. Yes, there was humor aplenty and no little wit.

And then Frank Stanton sketched a telephone post outside the church, and lined out a broken-down derelict humped against it.

"There's a sad outcast at every wedding," he said.

They are not going to send the picture to the salon or even hang it in a local exhibition; but they will save it, and it represents a bit of the heart of Atlanta's every artist.

And you can't find another like that in town.

College Boys Kissed Out of France

ANNISTON, Ala., Dec. 19.—"Be careful how you tell a Frenchman you're for the Allies. The first thing he does is kiss you on the cheek."

That's what two college boys said when they arrived here last week. The two sailed for Europe on a cattle ship, landed in Bordeaux, saw the war preparations, actually thought of enlisting, then decided the cattle ship had afforded enough hardship and adventure, and set out for home.

Our adventures live in Hattiesburg, and are L. S. Campbell and J. S. Harrison. On a cattle boat that pitched and tossed even at anchor, they suffered for Bordeaux. On the way they struck as rough weather as ever set the sea to heaving—forty cattle died, and it's a wonder any man came through alive.

Campbell, for his pluck and nerve, was made foreman of the rousters, and it isn't long ago that he was a Frenchman. The owner, who was waiting, heard the story of their services, fell on their neck and wept for gratitude; then, for all they had done, paid them the enormous sum of $10.

"Just after we got on land," says Campbell, "we happened to see a thin fellow we were all for the Allies, and he had to kiss us both on the cheek. Then, later on, when we were winning about enlisting, and as much, another fellow wanted to kiss us both on both cheeks. We decided right then if they were going to do that way we'd come right home."

"They stopped over in Great Britain and found that war is the only topic there, and that hatred of the Germans is rampant. Afterward, they started and kept going until they reached Alabama."

How to Spend Winter Season

IN rural communities winter is the season of idleness, but it is a time fraught with dangers as well as opportunities for the young. Somebody has said wisely that character is determined more by the manner of spending leisure than of working hours.

Habit often is the controlling influence that determines action under any given conditions. As many of the activities of the young result in the formation of habits becomes of immense importance.

Any community can determine if it chooses what shall be the habitual methods by which its young people shall employ their leisure time. Winter, as already suggested, is the season when these habits are formed; hence in winter the community should exert itself to provide healthful and ennobling as well as recreational occupations for its young people during their leisure hours.

No community should attempt to go through a winter without basketball, indoor baseball, bowling, ice skating, debate, chess, lecture courses, dramatic clubs, etc., should afford a field for activities of a useful kind. Dancing clubs under the adult supervision may be made to displace uncontrolled organizations of demoralizing character.

There are not going to be any more of these things, but they will not make possible improved facilities for amusements, but will elevate the plane on which they are conducted. The theory should be not to forbid or prohibit these forms of recreation because they are susceptible of abuse, but to control and regulate them so that they shall be healthful and inspiring.—American Lumberman.

Why Dead Man Was Given the Victoria Cross

After Both Legs Were Shot Away Capt. Bradbury Served Battery

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Bravery almost unbelievable won the Victoria Cross of England for Captain Edward Bradbury, of the Royal Horse Artillery, who fell at Nery on September 1.

Battery L, commanded by him, made a determined stand in some place on the last day of the retreat toward Paris. While covering the retreat, the battery was attacked by a strong German force with ten field guns and two maxims. Three British guns were brought into action, but two of them were quickly silenced. Bradbury and his men served the remaining gun well, however, that all but one of the German guns were silenced, and when Battery L was relieved this gun was captured. An account of the action says:

"Captain Bradbury was the real hero. He got the gun into action and saved the orders. Mundy knelt on one side as range officer. Bradbury, Campbell and Giffard, with the battery sergeant-major, gunner and driver, served the gun. Bradbury had one leg taken off, but still went on; Campbell and Mundy were killed. Bradbury had his other leg taken off, and Giffard was wounded, but still they kept the gun going; and when Battery L came up they found the Germans had bolted. Only the major and Giffard, who received five bullets, survived."

Ten Crosses Granted In Last Few Weeks

Three V. C.'s have now been awarded in connection with the retreat to the British. Major Sergeant Nelson having already received the decoration. In addition, Lieutenant Giffard, Gunner Darcyshire and Driver Osborne were awarded French decorations.

Ten Victoria crosses, all have been granted in the last few weeks which brings the total up to 31.

The cross is the highest award given to the British for gallantry in the presence of the enemy. The medal is in the form of a Maltese cross of bronze, bearing in the center the royal crown, surrounded by the words "FOR VALOR." The ribbon is blue for the navy and red for the army. The decoration is accompanied by a pension of $50 a year.

The ten latest "V. C." awards are as follows:

Private Sidney Godley, Royal Fusiliers, for coolness and gallantry in operating his machine gun under a hot fire for two hours after he had been wounded at Mons on August 26.

Driver John Drain, and Driver Frederick Luke, Royal Field Artillery, at Waterloo on August 26, as volunteers, helping to save guns under fire from hostile infantry 100 yards away.

Major Charles Yate, deceased, King's Own Light Infantry, commander of two companies that remained to end in trenches at Le Cateau on August 26, when all other forces had been ordered to withdraw. Nineteen survivors in gallant charge. Wounded; died in hands of opponents.

Indian Soldier Given Emblem of Courage

Lance Corporal Frederick Holmes, King's Own Light Infantry, at Le Cateau on August 26, carried wounded men from trenches under heavy fire; later assisted in driving a gun into action by taking place of a wounded driver.

Captain Edward Bradbury, deceased, Royal Horse Artillery, organized defense of battery against heavy German attack on September 1, under heavy fire, was wounded and killed.

Captain William Henry Johnston, Royal engineers, at Mons on September 14, under heavy fire, was wounded and killed.

Two ruffs bringing back wounded and returning with ammunition. Sergeant, Royal Field Artillery, for conspicuous gallantry on September 1, under heavy fire, was wounded and killed.

The first Indian to be recommended for the V. C. is Havildar (Sergeant) Ganga Singh, of the 34th Central Division's Rifles. The Havildar, with fifteen men was attacked in the trenches just before dawn on September 1, and he was killed while leading his men in a desperate struggle which ensued.

When picked up, he still held tightly the sword of a German officer whom he had killed.

This is the first war in which it has been possible for an Indian to win the Victoria Cross. Eligibility to distinction was one of the boons granted by King George at the Durbar of 1912.

Homespun Toilet Preparations

CHRISTMAS is reforming in various ways, and one of the greatest reforms is the giving of practical things instead of useless trifles of lace, ribbons, etc., which are no more than dust catchers. And this "practical" giving fortunately offers an opportunity for the presentation of articles that improve the physical appearance and accustom to feminine daintiness. There are always a hundred and one toilet articles which the average woman craves but economically refuses to buy for herself. Among such toilet articles are numerous creams and lotions and powders, all of which amount to a tidy sum if freely indulged in. These may be bought for gifts or made at home. In an attractive little receptacle with a low of ribbon upon it, the home-made preparation is a most welcome Christmas present. Bottom jars, etc., in which different toilet preparations have come should be accumulated as they are emptied. Such receptacles can be collected, even from one's friends, for the purpose. They should be relabeled when filled with your own preparations. Several excellent formulas for Christmas giving are as follows:

cheesecloth? Only those who do not understand the value of the softening influence of oatmeal upon water. The oatmeal bags are about the size of an ordinary iron holder and are filled with oatmeal. Make the bags of a double thickness of cheesecloth. No soap need be used with them. Such a bag can be used for a washcloth, and as such is rubbed over the face and body in the same fashion. Oatmeal will cause a soft and a cleansing. It softens the skin and is especially good for the skin that is too sensitive to stand the alkali in soap.

gloves can be bought, and both men and women are partial to rubber gloves. An electric vibrator is an aid to both beauty and health, and yet far too expensive for the average person to buy. How welcome a gift it would be!

The dainty boudoir cap certainly enhances the appearance of the "curly" woman, and if you know such a person, proceed to fashion the concealing device for her at once. Perhaps your particular curly-haired woman scoffs at boudoir caps, but no matter, introduce her to one and she will not be without it as long as she uses curlers of any sort. These caps can be quickly made of scraps of lace and ribbon. Perform one with a bit of sash, tie it up in a beribboned package and present it to the frowny woman you wish to reform.

Make your gifts "practical." That does not mean that they are to be necessarily unattractive. But make them count for something, so that they will not be surreptitiously passed on next Christmas.

which it is easy to fall. Try to stir yourself out of it. Begin now to make the Christmas day that is coming a red-letter day of usefulness.

Too you know what I have found excellent with children? There are always too many toys in the usual home. After the boys and girls have played with them, it is an easy matter to persuade them to give half of them away to some poor children that have no playthings. Let them take them to a hospital or to the homes of the deserving poor and feel the joy of giving.

Impress on them that a broken or dirty toy is not good enough for a gift. A gift must be the best or it is not good. And above all things, do not make the children feel that they do not really feel the usefulness that should prompt it. "The gift without the gift is bare."

Never was there truer words said. No one feels the lack of the heart more than a poor person on Christmas day.

Now we have provided for the children. What are you going to do to yourself? Are you going to sit and receive gifts and give nothing to those who are not in your list? Are you going to give no tangible expression of the love that is in your heart? For shame! If you have never done this, remember that it is never too late to begin to kind. On your last day you can be kind. Surely Christmas day is a good beginning.

There is a woman again a happy Christmas! If you make others happy there will be no envy of the Christmas joyous day.

the day or to interfere with the joy of the occasion.

Follow the same plan in your other observances. Before you read this you may have made your plans as to gifts, etc., but if you had concluded to omit presents of all sorts this year I would like to beg you to reconsider your determination not only from considerations of political economy and in view of the fact that failure to buy means distress to merchants and workers alike, but also because of the effect the absence of gift making will have in your family. Cherish the Christmas spirit, which is one of giving even to the extent of self-sacrifice.

restrict those bestowed in the family, so extend the bounds of your benevolence and render other persons glad. Christmas has come.

* * *

"We are giving little to one another this year," a mother said to me a few weeks ago. "There is so much suffering and need everywhere that some time we began to plan Christmas boxes to send away to those who are in real need. I found out about some small children who were lacking almost everything, my children, and I have put most of our Christmas money into things that poor little ones need. The boxes will come when they are done. Each one will have a pair of mittens or something of that sort, and a necktie or a ribbon as it is for a boy or a girl, and a wand and a few nuts and then either a picture book or some good toy, like a doll or a puzzle or something which will give pleasure to children who don't get much some to them in the way of amusement."

This struck me as a wonderfully good idea. The purchase of these articles of money in circulation just as much as were expended to buy additional presents for those who already have them than they need, and these gifts where they will do real good, instead of cluttering overfilled homes and making more articles to take care of. Still

I must again ask the consideration of the Cornerlies in fulfilling this request. We had several copies of each of these poems sent us by the kindness of the readers, but a number of applications came for them and all the copies have been given away. Will not some one who has the poems write to me for the address of this correspondent and send her the verses she wishes? I am sure she will not have to wait long for a favorable reply to her plea.

Reporter Who Hanged a Man for the Sake of an Atlanta Paper

Little Old Lady Who Scooped New York on the "Crown Princess Cecile" Story—How the "World" Learned Of America's Great Naval Battle

Atlanta newspaper men had an impromptu meeting the other day, and out of it came the stories that are printed here—reminders, they are, and every one of them true. The honor guest at this meeting was Oliver B. New, now commissioner of the District of Columbia, but an old newspaper man, in spite of that. Some of the stories are his contributions.

BACK in the nineties there was an Atlanta newspaper reporter sent to cover a murder trial and subsequent hanging over in North Carolina.

In those days there was no telephone or telegraph service worthy of the name in the south, and the only communication between this little town and Atlanta was the mails. The reporter had to send all his stuff in this way.

He thought about it a while, but could figure no way out except to write an imaginative story of the murderer's last moments on the scaffold and his drop into eternity several hours before the event actually occurred. Well, he did it. Two hours before the hanging, the trains were carrying Atlantaward a vivid description of the tragedy.

And not until then did the reporter discover there was a hitch. The sheriff and all his deputies backed out at the last moment and refused to hang the man. Not one of them would agree to pull the drop that split death.

Worried is a parolous word to describe the reporter's condition, at mind. Here nothing in the world could stop the story that would be spread on the front page Thursday morning, and all indications pointed to an indefinite postponement of the hanging.

The reporter went back to the sheriff. He pleaded with him to hang the man. To no avail. "I won't do it, my deputies won't," said the sheriff. "So there you are."

"Well, if a deputy is all you need, swear me in," said the reporter. "I'll do anything to make my story good, even hang a man."

And he did.

New York World's Scoop

Speaking of hangings, did you hear the story of how the New York World got its scoop on the Crown Princess Cecile story?

The Crown Princess Cecile, you know, was a big liner that left New York shortly after the war started, with a cargo of gold. Everybody thought it was off for Europe; all the papers said so, but a few days later the Crown Princess steamed secretly into Bar Harbor.

And the New York World was the only paper to get the story of the return of the Crown Princess. A woman got it.

She was an old lady, and she had stayed on at her Bar Harbor cottage long after the summer season was over, and most of the colony had gone. One morning a few days early in the fall she was out for a walk.

Darktown May Soon Be Motoring to Police Station; 38 Caliber Beans Are Fattening the Desk Sergeant

WHEN the old horse-drawn Black Maria was kicked into the ash heap to make way for automobile patrols, everybody in Darktown tried to see who could get arrested first, just for the ride.

Now it's going to be even worse. The department has asked for run-arounds for its call officers, and if the request is allowed, there will be a riot up at Devil's Dip and down in Frog Hollow to see who shall motor first to police station.

Our means of transportation for popular police court characters is rapidly undergoing an evolution. First we discarded the old-fashioned Black Maria as crude and unbefitting; then, we took to automobile patrols; and now we want little run-arounds in which call officers shall motor to the scenes of disturbances and bring back the offenders.

Before the winter is done, we may have limousines so that one may be sure of not suffering from the cold in making the trip to police station.

The department says call officers ought to have automobile because they are forced to make arrests nearly every time they answer a call.

They now use motorcycles and have no way of bringing prisoners back to police station, and waste much time waiting for the patrol car to arrive.

Further, light run-arounds would cost little, and the up-keep would be negligible.

Corn Bread and 38ies

The thinnest man who ever had the desk sergeant's job at police station set fat in two weeks. Even the newspaper reporters grow chunky. It's because of the 38ies from the stockade.

Thirty-eighties are beans, but they are different from any other beans in the world. To begin with, the stockade always gets them the size of 38-caliber bullets. Then, they are cooked until they are hard as lead, and look as though a post would be taking a chance with them.

In a dish of 38ies lies health and strength. Of course the desk sergeant and the reporters become dinner companions. The prisoners, however, can see them burgoon and fatter under the influence of stockade beans.

They have a saying at police station that a sick man could eat a dish of 38ies, and turn at once into a Sampson.

Thieves Who Steal Coal

When things are missing, the police write of the loss in a gray-backed, rather closely-ruled book at police station. They make many entries in a day's time. Clothing, money, cheap jewelry stolen. But that is merely a record of everyday theft. Now, a new sort of thievery is being recorded. People are stealing coal. They steal little more than handfuls—just enough to light a fire—enough to make a blaze over which they hover and warm their hands. We've seldom had the sort of thing before. Fuel of course is stolen in winter. But not just as it is now. Not a few lumps or a few handfuls at a time. Before this people have stolen fuel just as they would anything else. Now, they are taking little bits at a time because they are cold.

Sheepers at Police Station

You see the effects of the times in the people who ask a bed at police station. They are so cold they can't sleep last week. They had no place to go, they had no way to keep warm. To avoid freezing they asked to be allowed to sleep in the row of cells that are known as the sleepers' ward. One or two were negroes, the rest were white men.

Whiskey at Headquarters

Police station, if it had the mind, is ill equipped for a locker club. About 3,000 gallons of whiskey are stored there. Some of it was taken in raids on blind tigers, some, from the vest pockets and the hip pockets of "drunks."

In the vault back of the desk sergeant's office are stored many other things. Among the trash are two cracker boxes full of knives—old broken, dull blades that were taken from prisoners and never called for.

But they are being kept, because a man grows particularly attached to a knife, especially a worthless one.

Now and then a half-embarassed fellow will walk in, hesitate a minute, and then speak confidentially to the sergeant.

He had left a knife there a year ago. So good. But then he'd got attached to it. When he "got out" he was two worried to think of it, I'd carry a gun."

Recorder's Black List

Recorder Johnson is making out a black list. When he took office he wiped Darktown's slate clean. As far as he is concerned, he said, all of you are as innocent as the new born. But, as offenders came before him, he chalked black marks against their names, and now, as they reappear, he increases their sentence. Again Darktown's slate is being well marked.

Daughter of the Germans

It she were young again, Mrs. Mary Bohnefeld, matron at police station, would be bidding Atlanta good-bye and setting out for Europe. She is German, was born in Heidelberg, and no one in Atlanta has half her enthusiasm for the Fatherland.

"If I had the youth," she said last week, "I would leave for Germany tomorrow, and I'd enlist there in the Red Cross, or if they'd let me, I'd carry a gun."

Crack Shot Who Killed Mammy's Xmas Dinner

There must be an epidemic of some sort about," said the June bride.

"Why, I hadn't heard of it," replied the neighbor.

"Oh, yes, there is. My George had to sit up with sick friends three nights last week."

If He'd Been There.

A little girl about six years old was visiting friends, and during the course of the conversation one of them remarked:

"I hear you have a new little sister."

"Just two weeks old," she replied. "Did you want it to be a little girl?" asked the friend.

"I wanted it to be a boy," she replied. "But it came while I was at school."

Christmas Gift.

Michigan has an anti-profanity law which makes it a misdemeanor to swear in the presence of a woman. It does not, however, forbid a man to swear at their presence.

For the Time Being.

Ardent Admirer—Dearest, I have brought you my paltry Christmas gift. I ask you to take me for the present.

Chinelo Widow—Well, if it is to be only temporary, you are mine.

Quite Likely.

The Christmas goose was inclined to be facetious as it gorged the food so generously given. "I presume," it remarked, "that during the battle for the Valentine dinner they will attack both my right and left wings."

Making Sure.

Mrs. Olden—I buy my husband a box of cigars every Christmas.

Mrs. Newed—But I thought you objected to his smoking at home.

Mrs. Olden—So I do—and he never does.

A New Definition.

Teacher—What is the difference between militarism and military?

Pupil—Militarism is the feminine for militarism!

Looking.

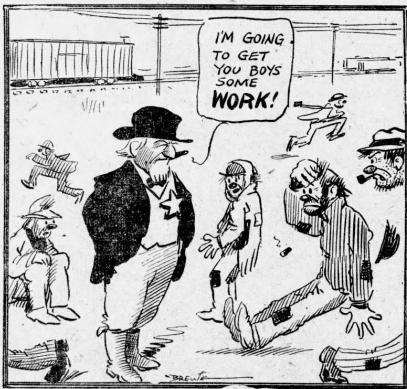

Friend—What are you doing for a job?

Another—Looking for one.

Brief Decisions.

"All the world loves a lover"—or so it seems, anyway, to the girl who is engaged to him.

Hoboes, Traveling De Luxe, Swarm to South Georgia

WAYCROSS, Ga., Dec. 19.—Hoboes are pouring into South Georgia and Florida. Strains passing here have anywhere from fifteen to forty such tourists. Recently, fifteen were found on one train near Thomasville, and twenty-one were booted off at the same place the next morning.

A camp of forty-five men, not a one of whom had ever done a lick of work, was found near Waycross, and the whole army of them was put to rout. But the marshal, instead of using any howitzers, just dropped a hint where the whole camp could hear, that he was going to find jobs for the bunch if they didn't vamoose by daylight.

The smiling sun next day didn't smile on a tramp anywhere near Waycross. The marshal says when he mentioned work, twelve of them fainted.

A report reaching here is that thirty-nine hoboes were taken out of one car at Jacksonville last week. Some of these tourists are men of education and seem to come from good families. The wanderlust simply has got a grip on them and won't let go. The local Salvation Army has been overworked with requests for sleeping quarters for the homeless and the jobless.

This was the case.

At 10:15 he was perspiring slightly. At 10:30 he sent out and bought a revolver which he placed on his desk. At 10:45 he was in a nervous chill. By 10:50 he shook like an aspen leaf. At 11 o'clock, he waited with his heart in his mouth.

When, at 11:05, Jones had not appeared he began to breathe easier. At 11:10 and still no Jones, he leaned back in relief. At 11:15, he was smiling. At 11:20, one of his reporters rushed in.

"Here's a good story," he yelled. "Jones of Smith and Jones, has just been killed. He was shot in Smith's office, two blocks from here, about five minutes of eleven. Smith shot him. This threatening note explains it."

"Here is a denial of the story which appeared in yesterday's paper. You must sign it. If you do not sign it, you may expect to take the consequences. I will call at 10:45 for your answer."

If the General Were Correspondent

That reminds one of the World's scoop on the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet in Santiago bay '98.

News in Washington that hot summer Sunday of July 3 was duller than that it had ever been. The general was in the city, and the White House and were told that there was absolutely nothing doing. No news from the war at all. While they were in the ante-room, a general high in the confidence of the president came in.

He was asked if there was any news. He shook his head. The group began to break up, the correspondents to stroll off in different directions to find a cool spot to wait for the next news. The general, however, stayed in the White House, joined the general. They were good friends. They walked along together. The other correspondents had been left behind.

"General, don't you know any news at all?" said the World man. "I never saw things so dull. What can I send 'em today? They want war news. But I haven't any. Just suppose for a minute you were Washington correspondent for the World, would you not be writing your paper?"

The general stopped in the middle of a stride, and looked earnestly at the correspondent. They were alone.

"If I were correspondent for the New York World today," began the general very deliberately. "If I were correspondent for the New York World, I would send my paper a dispatch to the effect that the Spanish fleet had been totally destroyed by the American fleet as it was coming out of Santiago bay."

The correspondent gasped. "What do you mean, general?" he whispered tensely.

The general repeated his words very deliberately. "If I were correspondent for the New York World today," he said, "I would send my paper a dispatch to the effect that the Spanish fleet had been totally destroyed by the American fleet as it was coming out of Santiago bay."

They eyed each other man to man. Then the general turned on his heel, and the correspondent for the New York World broke his neck getting to the nearest telegraph office. He knew it when he saw it.

An hour later, the New York World's extra proclaiming the news of the war's greatest victory had roused New York to fever pitch. The city was being flashed from coast to coast, and seventy-nine other correspondents in Washington were besieging official sources for confirmation of the news. The World was telegraphing its correspondents every three minutes for more details. And the correspondent couldn't get them. Furthermore, he could get no more official confirmation of his scoop than the others. Yet he knew by all the gods above that his story was true. Finally, he rushed from office to office. Everywhere he was met with bland ignorance. He could find the general nowhere. He was fairly wild with the feeling that his story was absolutely correct, but he couldn't be confirmed. Finally, the World fired him in a two-letter telegram.

Late that night, when the general had died down and every correspondent, every newspaper, was convinced of the error of the report, President McKinley summoned every correspondent to the White House.

An official bulletin was given that confirmed the story. It was explained that it was meant to keep the news back as a Fourth of July present to the people of the United States.

And the correspondent for the New York World got his job back.

Managing Editor's Escape

There was once a managing editor of a paper in a Kentucky town, who had the luckiest escape I ever heard of.

One day two lumber dealers, whom we will call Jones and Smith, called at his office with the district attorney.

"We understand that you have the facts in this lumber scandal, and are going to print them," began the district attorney.

"I have no story whatever of any lumber scandal," replied the managing editor. As a matter of fact, it was the first he had heard about it.

The district attorney smiled. "You needn't plead ignorance," he said. "We know you have the facts. Just tell me what they are. We know that you know that Jones here, has been embezzling his partner out of lumber, and that Smith yesterday began proceedings against him. We know that you know it and want to print it."

"I have never heard of such a story," said the managing editor. The district attorney smiled again. "As you please," he said. "But we know you know it," and he proceeded to tell the managing editor all the facts which he knew the managing editor knew but which, as a matter of fact, the managing editor had never heard before.

"Smith and Jones have agreed to have proceedings stopped," concluded the district attorney. "And we don't want you to print the story."

"Are these facts?" asked the managing editor. "Yes," said Jones and Smith. "They nodded confirmation."

"But how can you stop proceedings?" asked the managing editor of the district attorney. "It isn't legal."

"O, that's all right," smiled the district attorney. "I'll stop proceedings anyway. What we want you to do is to promise not to print the story."

"Gentlemen," said the managing editor, "I never heard of this story until you called on me. But now you have confirmed all the facts so nicely, I intend to print it in full."

They argued and contended. The managing editor took out his watch. "I intended at first to put a single column head on this story," he said. "But for every minute of my time you take up, I will increase the size of the head one column. . . . They argued some more. The head is now two columns. . . . Silent Woman of Mexico Found in Spain

Victoriano Huerta Is Living in a Simple Little Cottage in Barcelona

By Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain, Dec. 19.—Far from the scenes of his former triumphs and defeats, General don Victoriano Huerta, once a dictator of Mexico, today lives quietly in a little dwelling half an hour's drive from the center of Barcelona.

His surroundings are not those of a man of wealth, and he explains that he has barely enough money to keep his family in comfort. He moves about quietly and without ostentation in any form. Every afternoon he may be found in a prominent cafe, drinking with some of his trusted lieutenants and talking quietly, but he never is in the spotlight. The general's house is in a small garden and there are other similar little homes on all sides. When The Associated Press correspondent called by appointment to talk with the general, the front door of the house was wide open.

Ordered More Cognac: Was Impatient When it Was Slow in Coming

The general came out immediately. He was stouter than formerly and wore a new overcoat with the collar turned up, as he seemed cold. His health, however, appeared perfect.

Upon the correspondent excusing himself from dining, the general made an appointment to talk over Mexican affairs at the Cafe Malson Dore, one of the principal cafes in Barcelona. The general does there every afternoon and remains several hours. Later he was found in one corner of the Dore cafe, surrounded by ten or twelve men with dark faces, gleaming eyes and turned-up mustaches. On the table were water glasses half filled with cognac. The entire party went into a back room for greater privacy. The general ordered more cognac. It was slow in coming and he was impatient. General Suarez, General Huerta, who is no kinsman of the former dictator, and Colonel Chavez were among the six generals and three colonels of the party. They were all young men. They were extremely deferential. When Huerta took a cigar from his pocket two or three of them lit matches and held them toward him. Two of General Huerta's sons were also there. "What is your opinion of the Mexican situation?" the former dictator was asked.

Mexico is Being Burned and Robbed. Thinks the Dictator

"A letter just received by one of my aids describes the situation," he replied. "Houses are being sacked, highwaymen pillage everywhere, no one nor anything is safe. There is burning, robbing and murdering. No one respects Carranza. There is neither order nor authority. Such a situation ought to come to an end. I formed an army and would have restored him to the country had it not been for the intervention of the United States. Bandits have taken possession of my property, that is, of my wife's, for I have nothing."

The general spoke of the great future of Mexico, in which he saw a minor and that he had Mexico City a rather unpretentious supply store. I know that he has succeeded in bribing the assembly and that they named him provisional president. He will probably last just seventy days. I do not know anything of his personal abilities. Since he has been in command, rascals keep on getting hold of the money and have made themselves masters of the situation.

"Do you intend to return to Mexico?" "No, I do not wish to return. I left the country in the hands of Carranza in order that I might not be a hindrance to the pacification of my country and that it might be seen that I was not seeking personal advantage. I shall not return unless my country should need me as a soldier, not as a president. If my country were threatened, then yes."

You would return in case the United States should attempt intervention.

No Enemy of the United States, but Hates Mr. Wilson

"No, I say in case of any danger whatever, I am no enemy of the United States save as they are enemies of my land. I do not bear a hatred against the people, rather do I admire them. My particular dislike is directed against the Democratic party and President Wilson."

"Why did you choose Spain as your residence?" "Because I trust in its noble hospitality, because my only ambition and aim now is to educate my young children. I have a great fortune. I shall devote all my time to them. I prefer Barcelona because the climate seems to be the best for me. Madrid does not agree with me at all. The doctors have advised me to return to America, but I shall not do so. My friends and I are now in some of the Spanish clubs and in society. But this is due, perhaps, to foreign influences. You have probably seen that I have been slandered. It is said that I have a great fortune. There is not a word of truth in that. I have hardly enough to live on modestly after having been president of Mexico for seventeen months. I have no furniture, except a few things, a few coats and some blankets. I live poorly, but, on the other hand, I will leave for my children an immense patrimony. It is my name to which the history of Mexico will do justice."

HOW CHRISTMAS IS COMING TO ATLANTA

Woman Is Here Who Dared Perils in China

In the Sedan chairs, carried on the backs of soldiers; the second day by water; and the evening of the third day we came to the village where I prayed for guidance to a safe inn. There is a market in that town, and I knew the people from all the country would be there. Never before had they seen a white woman traveling as I was.

"What would they do? God direct me to a safe place, was my prayer. And, then, we brought up at a low walled hut that passed for an inn, and it seemed to me the most inhospitable spot on earth. What was going to happen?"

"At once I sent my card to the chief officer of the village and waited. He should have sent his card in return at once, and that would have been a protection. But he did not. With the Chinese woman I sat on the mud floor of the back hut and waited. The minutes dragged, we jumped at every sound."

Suddenly a Light Flared in the Door

"Suddenly, without any warning whatever, a light flared in the door, and the figure of a Chinese bulked there. I tried to scream, and couldn't. I just sat there and waited, and then the light advanced into the room and I found it was the official come to assure me of a safe journey on the rest of my way."

The story of how Miss Charles made the trip alone through a country that rather unpropitious country from Kueilin to Luchow, is familiar to every missionary in Southern China.

It was the first thing Miss Elizabeth Lewis mentioned in speaking last week of her six years in China.

"Oh! I just saw and did the commonplace things," she said. "But Miss Charles made a trip no other woman has attempted."

And, yet, Miss Lewis was in southern China at the time of the revolution, and has endured serious sickness in that far land, where care of the sick is crude at best.

Things in China Are Changing Fast

Both she and Miss Charles represented the Christian Alliance, and for the most part, have been assigned to the same stations.

"Things in China have changed," said Miss Lewis. "The old ways are going fast, particularly on the coast. There is talk now of another revolution, and I think the talk is well founded. The young men want even more freedom, and even newer ways."

"In Southern China you never see a cue, the women go around in the streets very much as they do here, and the dress is becoming western."

"The state religion still is Confucianism, but Christianity is gaining."

"Still, the thing that's uppermost in my mind is the danger and rush and hurry-burry of Atlanta. In China, in the largest cities, nothing is ever done in a hurry. But here it's as though you were afraid the minute would escape you."

"I came home to rest, but I don't think anyone can rest in Atlanta."

Miss Lewis is the daughter of Ulysses Lewis, attorney.

Instead of Giving Merely to Friends the City Will Give to the Stranger Who Is in Need--Altogether, Christmas Will Mean More Charity Than Ever Before

CHRISTMAS is coming to Atlanta this year with a new meaning. The city will give this season to strangers and not to friends. The needs of those who are unemployed will find a place above friends and even dearer ones. There has never been a year when Christmas called forth the charity that will be shown this Yuletide. All those who have something to give seem to be planning to share it with those in need. There will be less than ever of the usual Christmas-giving. That sort of kindness is not the Christmas expression at which the city is aiming. It seems that everyone sees clearly the need that the times have created, and that everyone who can means to help relieve the suffering. People are going daily to the city warden and to the Associated Charities and asking: Whom can I help? Tell me who stands greatest in need? There is a love of humanity abroad this year that has not attended other Christmas seasons. Giving to dear ones, after all, is in it something that is selfish. But to give to the stranger—there is the spirit of Christmas. The city varden says that one of the gifts most needed are clothes. Cast-off garments will mean much to needy families.

English Prince of Wales At College

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Prince of Wales' career at Oxford—his studies, his sports, his friendships—are described in a statement given out by Dr. T. H. Warren, president of Magdalen College, Oxford.

"Bookish the prince will never be," says Dr. Warren, "but a Beauclerk, still less a British Solomon. Kings, perhaps fortunately, seldom are this last. But the prince will get want for power of ready and forcible presentation, either in speech or writing. All the time at Oxford he was learning more and more of men, gauging character, watching its play, getting to know what Englishmen are like, both individually and in the mass."

The prince finished his second year at Magdalen and was to have returned for at least one more term had not the war cut short his course. He arrived at Oxford at 18 years of age. Dr. Warren continues: "He was well forward in the studies, and training of the navy, but naturally somewhat newer to, and less directly prepared for university life and studies than the public school boy. In a very few weeks he began to find his feet and develop rapidly. From the first he took his own line, with equal modesty and firmness, determined that he would be really an 'equal among equals,' that he would seek and accept no tribute except on his merits, that he would take as habitual and assiduous trouble to avoid deference or preference as others take to cultivate it. His natural dignity and charm and the good sense and good feeling of his college companions, enabled him to go far in this resolve without mishap."

"He made a wide acquaintance. His rooms were more and more open to his friends and his friends' friends. He played football, tennis, golf, racquets; he motored; he rowed on the college boats; he ran a great deal of the college's business at various times during his residence at Oxford. In this last accomplishment he started at a disadvantage, but by real perseverance and pluck soon made up for it. He was a punctual and diligent member of the ranks of the officers' training corps. He drilled, he marched, he went into camp like any other private."

"As to his set studies, his time was short, the career for which he was to prepare was a unique one. Strict educational economy had to be practiced. His command of literary expression in his own language, was necessary for him. History, political economy, political science, and constitutional law were desirable."

First Man Hanged Here in 1857

First Manufacturing Enterprise Started Here By Jonathan Norcross

By Gordan Noel Hurtel

THE first man hanged in Atlanta was named Crockett and his execution took place in 1857. This hanging was quickly followed by the execution of John Cobb. Cobb and Crockett were both convicted of the same crime, the murder of an old man by the name of Landrum, who was waylaid and brutally assaulted on the McDonough road (now Capitol avenue).

There being no military at that time, the mayor ordered the members of Mechanic fire company No. 2, volunteer organization, to attend the hanging and see that order was observed. The company was under the command of C. R. Hamlet.

The first crime wave struck the city in 1856 when four atrocious murders were committed. Cobb and Crockett killed Landrum; Balliff Webb was shot by William A. Choice on Pryor street; Amos Hammond was murdered and his body placed on the tracks of the Macon and Western railroad; a young man named Wither shot and killed his father in the American hotel at the corner of Alabama and Pryor streets.

The first murder that occurred in the city was in 1851 when a young man named Humphries killed a son of John Tiller in what was known as "Snake Nation," near where the railroads now cross Peters street.

The first recorded suicide in the city was in 1857 when Dr. Land Gilbert, a young physician, killed himself.

Saw-Mill On Decatur Street At Yonge Was First Manufacturing Plant

When Atlanta was Marthasville, its first manufacturing enterprise was started by Jonathan Norcross, who erected a saw-mill where Decatur street is now intersected by Yonge street. It was run by horse power. Mr. Norcross made his mill popular by giving away to the poor all the slabs to be used for building cabins.

The city's second manufacturing enterprise was a cabinet and coffin factory built by William Whitaker in 1850.

In 1846 an earthenware factory was started by J. R. Craven. A marble yard for the making of tombstones was opened by T. T. Nix in 1847.

The first foundry and machine shop was started in 1848 by Austin H. Dandridge and Robert Finley. James L. Dunning later secured an interest in the business. The plant was used by the Confederate government during the civil war for the manufacture of war material.

W. F. Martin owned the first buggy and wagon factory in 1849.

The manufacture of furniture was started by William Whitaker in 1850.

Emmel & Cunningham made Atlanta's first candy in 1851.

In 1852 the town began to loom up as a manufacturing center and freight cars and cotton gins were made by Joseph Winslow in that year.

The first large flour mill was operated by Richard and W. G. Peters in 1852 on the corner of Butler and Hunter streets. Atlanta's first home-made whiskey was placed on the market in 1857 by T. C. Hard, Thomas Lewis, who had a distillery on Houston street.

Kontz & Fechter made the first beer in 1855.

First Fire Company Organized In 1850: Was Bucket Brigade

Atlanta's first volunteer fire company was organized in 1850. It was a "bucket brigade." Among those who were members of the companies in the early days were Robert J. Lowry, C. W. Hunsicker, Oliver H. Jones, Dr. James F. Alexander, Lewis Calhoun, Benjamin A. Crew, William F. Clarke, John D. Clarke, Henry Bellinger, John B. Meacham, C. F. Lynch, John Gramling, H. W. Joyner, M. Haverly, Henry Kuhn, John W. Collier, M. L. Collier, John R. Ellsworth, John Berkle, Henry Gullatt, J. L. Queen, C. F. S. D'Alvigny, George W. Parrott, F. M. Richardson, Noah R. Fowler, S. B. Love, J. C. Peck and Frank T. Rice.

Atlanta's first serious fire occurred in the winter of 1853 on the east side of Whitehall street about one hundred feet south of Alabama street. The building was a frame structure, two stories high, and used as both a store and a dwelling.

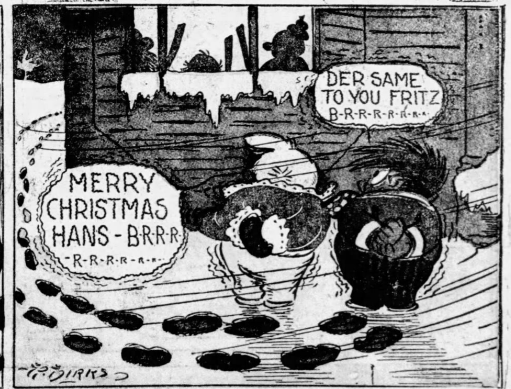

A woman and two children were burned to death because the volunteer firemen did not arrive in time. The fire was caused by a candle. The firemen, Frank Johnson, of New York, who had come to connect himself with the firm of McNaught, Ormond & Co., was one of the men who immediately raised a fund with which to pay for ladders.
